Apple ices app for seal hunt game

REJECTED A Canadian software engineer who designed a seal-clubbing video game can't understand why Apple deemed its content objectionable and rejected it.

Matt Smyth, 28, of St. John's, N.L., says the computer giant has chosen not to post iSealClub on its App Store.

His cartoon creation is no more violent than other games that involve stalking bears or deer, he said in an interview Thursday.

"I was careful not to make the game graphic or have any gore or anything. It's very light-hearted. It's all cartoon based.

"It's not what you would consider a very violent game. I know it involves clubbing seals, but (it's) no different than the way people get clubbed in Mickey Mouse or Looney Tunes."

Condo The roof, the roof is on fire

JOHN R. KENNEDY/FOR METRO TORONTO

A fire at a downtown condominium tower creates a huge cloud of black smoke near the city's waterfront late Thursday afternoon. More than a dozen firefighters managed to contain the blaze on the roof of the building at Rees Street and Queen's Quay West. Paramedics transported two adults with minor injuries to hospital.

An eye on Facebook

Application takes tracking and profiling to new level

A new Facebook application that could be used by advertisers to target users based on their personal preferences and those of their friends is raising privacy concerns in Canada, experts say.

The application, announced last Wednesday, allows Facebook users to publicly connect with other websites they like and share them with their friends.

When users click a button called "like" on any one of the 70 participating websites, a link to that page is added to their Facebook profile.

In addition, Facebook has linked up with three sites, including Microsoft Corp.'s doc.com, Pandora, and Yelp! where users' Facebook content is used to personalize the content and connect them with their friends.

"It's what I and others call 'soft surveillance,'" said Ian Kerr, a University of Ottawa law professor and Canada Research Chair in Ethics, Law & Technology.

"Marketers are building their social graphs based on their social networks, mapping connections between people."

It's taking online tracking and profiling to a whole new level, Kerr warned, comparing it to Google Streetview for social networks.

"So if some of your friends are deadbeats, marketers may conclude you are a bad risk, too," Jules Polonetsky, director of the U.S. based Future of Privacy Forum added.

Facebook users can opt out of this feature, Kerr said.

But few online users exercise privacy options despite their concerns about the potential for abuse, the conference hosted by Canada's Office of the Privacy Commissioner heard.

The office is monitoring Facebook's activities closely, assistant privacy commissioner Elizabeth Denham said in an interview.

Social network

- Linking users' personal profiles, including their age, gender, race, education and economic status to their personal preferences and those of their friends could have widespread implications, the conference heard. Marketers could then target ads based on a users' social network, not just their own personal preferences.

Scene at Chinese school 'too horrible to imagine'

ATTACK The screams of the four-year-olds inside the kindergarten could be heard from the street.

When people ran in to investigate, they found what one witness said was a scene "too horrible to imagine" — blood everywhere as a knife-wielding man slashed 28 children, two teachers and a security guard Thursday in the second such school attack in China in two days.

Experts called it a copycat rampage triggered by similar incidents Wednesday and last month. They said the wave of school attacks falls amid poor care for the mentally unstable and growing feelings of social injustice in the fast-changing country.

Thursday's attack left five students hospitalized in critical condition in the eastern city of Taixing, said Zhu Guiming, an official with the municipal propaganda department. Two teachers and the security guard were also hurt.

Xinhua News Agency identified the attacker as Xu Yuyuan, a 47-year-old unemployed man. No motive was given.

Armed ice cream robbery

Two Pickering teens face robbery charges after a grocery store was robbed of ice cream treats at knifepoint. Police say employees at a Pickering Sobey's store noticed two teens taking ice cream products from the frozen section and putting them in a backpack late Wednesday. Police say responding officers found two 17-year-olds and arrested both, recovering the ice cream and seizing a knife and a pellet gun. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Province makes Transit City pledge

Letter promises four lines will be completed, but in 10 years instead of 8

After weeks of warnings from Mayor David Miller that the province had put a stake through the heart of his Transit City light rail plan, Queen's Park has confirmed in writing that all four previously approved lines will be built — albeit in 10 years rather than eight.

A letter from the province to the city suggests Metrolinx has come up with a plan to keep all four previously announced Transit City projects, as well as York Region's express bus lanes, on the map, despite a $4-billion funding cut over the next five years.

"Initial work by Metrolinx suggests that the four Transit City projects can reasonably be completed in 10 years, while achieving the required savings of $4 billion in the first five years," says the April 27 letter to city manager Joe Pennachetti.

The province had repeatedly committed $9.5 billion to Metrolinx's Big Five transit projects. But in the March provincial budget, Premier Dalton McGuinty ordered Metrolinx to cut $4 billion from those projects over the next five years.

A furious Miller suggested the cut would mean the end of one or more of the Transit City lines, even as the province offered repeated assurances that the projects would continue, just more slowly.

It's not known yet if the five-over-10 plan means adjusting the projects. Metrolinx's plan calls for Sheppard to be built on the original timeline of 2013, but would put the other projects on a later schedule.

Solar-powered signs

- The TTC is piloting solar-powered next-vehicle-arrival signs at Broadview and Dundas West stations, at a retrofit cost of about $15,000 for the two.

Most transit shelters around the world contain a solar component, say TTC officials. So experts here will be looking at other places the technology can be applied.

The TTC doesn't have the authority to install solar power in most bus and streetcar shelters, however, because they're governed by the city's street furniture contract with Astral Outdoor.

Invention Convention

HEATHER BUCHAN
for Metro Toronto

CREATIVE KIDS Have you ever seen a convertible shoe, a shoe with a zipper that transforms into a sandal when it unzips? Or, what about a "shovel & shake" — a shovel that spreads salt as you shovel snow?

These were just a couple of inventions presented in downtown Toronto yesterday by a group of ambitious and creative thinking Grade 7 and 8 students from school boards across southern Ontario.

In all, more than 350 students gathered for the 13th annual Invention Convention, organized the national non-profit organization The Learning Partnership, which is dedicated to championing a strong public education system across Canada through innovative programs and public engagement, including the well-known Take Our Kids to Work campaign.

But yesterday's invention exhibit was the culmination of months of hard work for these up-and-coming young inventors. Since January, the students from participating schools worked closely with their teachers to turn their ideas into reality.

Students first had to identify a problem in their own life and invent a product based on concepts they learned in class to solve their problem. One student came up with the fantastic fish feeder, which is set on a timer and automatically feeds fish so you never forget to.

Other Invention Conventions are taking place in Calgary, Edmonton and St. John's, N.L. throughout April and May.

DAREArts Levy recognized

JOHN R. KENNEDY/FOR METRO TORONTO

Eugene Levy and his wife, Deborah Divine, arrive at the DAREArts Leadership Awards gala at Liberty Grand last night. The annual fundraising event honoured Levy, the Second City and six outstanding youth.

News in brief

HST The government's advice to stock up on certain goods now to save on the upcoming harmonized sales tax shows what a bad idea the levy really is, opposition parties said Thursday. "They keep saying it's not that bad," said NDP Leader Andrea Horwath. "And yet ... the minister himself is advising people to avoid the tax." Revenue Minister John Wilkinson said there were benefits to making purchases like gym memberships, summer trips and theatre subscriptions ahead of Saturday, when the first phase of the transition to the merged sales tax begins.

69-year-old woman attacked in robbery attempt on TTC

Police are continuing to search for a black man in his early 20s after a 69-year-old woman was attacked during a robbery attempt on a subway car at Wellesley station earlier this week. Police describe the suspect as being between 20 and 22, about 5-foot-7, about 160 to 170 pounds, brown eyes, short curly hair and purple marks on his cheeks. TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

Miller shrugs off low rank

Toronto 85th in 'livability' index

Mayor David Miller is shrugging off a national business magazine's ranking of Toronto as the 85th most livable city in Canada, and taking a bit of a shot at top-ranked Ottawa-Gatineau.

"Do you want to live in Ottawa?" Mayor David Miller

Told about the survey by MoneySense — which ranked Canadian cities using factors such as house prices and unemployment, both of which helped push Toronto down six spots from last year — Miller asked a reporter: "Do you want to live in Ottawa?"

The mayor, being scrummed Thursday after his farewell annual speech to the Toronto Board of Trade, then paused and said: "People from around the world are moving to Toronto because it's a great place to live," with safe neighbourhoods and record TTC ridership.

Miller acknowledged he's concerned about the cost of living and growing gap between rich and poor in Toronto. But he rejected the findings, which also put Kingston, Burlington, Repentigny, Que., and Brandon, Man., in the top 10.

"That may be that magazine's opinion, but I think it's not shared by Torontonians and it's certainly not shared by the tens of thousands of people who move here every year."

Another factor in Toronto's lower ranking this year, the magazine said, is that some prosperous bedroom communities were, for the first time, not incorporated in Toronto's score. TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

Officers give BMW motorcycles a spin

BIKES Toronto police are having a European fling.

After 20 years of riding macho Harley-Davidsons, five officers are test driving svelte BMW motorcycles this year.

Sgt. Tim Burrows of Traffic Service said police are simply shopping around for the benefit of the taxpayer and their officers. After this season, police brass will determine if the BMWs have a future in the fleet.

"There's no way we'd turn over the fleet," he said. "There's nothing wrong with the Harleys. We're just trying something new. We want the best equipment possible."

All 81 bikes have been on the road for the last two weeks, and there are already a few advantages with the five BMWs: The new bikes have power windshields; a more advanced cooling system; and a back rest for those long rides.

One thing they do not have, said Const. Gordon Fowlds, is that unmistakable Harley roar.

"That's too noisy," joked Const. Brian Horton, one of the lucky few to ride the BMWs.

"Sorry, I can't hear you," Fowlds replied, astride his Harley.

Khadr attends evidence hearing after resisting going to court

GUANTANAMO Toronto native Omar Khadr attended his war-crimes hearings Thursday after the judge hearing the case warned he would be taken to the Guantanamo Bay courtroom by force if he continued to refuse.

The hearings were stalled for several hours after Khadr refused to attend on the grounds authorities were trying to "humiliate" him by making him wear black-out goggles and earmuffs for the ride in a windowless van from his cells.

After Col. Patrick Parrish told Khadr's lawyers to let him know he would be brought to court by force, Khadr relented — although he complained of severe pain in his eyes.

The hearings proceeded with prosecutors showing a video of Khadr working with an improvised explosive device.

The hearings are to determine whether self-incriminating statements he gave can be used as evidence. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Footage of two suspects in subway mugging released

CRIME Police have released video of two suspects fleeing the subway mugging of a 79-year-old Toronto man with the feisty senior in hot pursuit.

Video cameras providing such images will be standard equipment when the new Toronto Rocket subway cars make their first appearance on the Yonge-Spadina line this fall.

Yusuf Hizel was held down by two men who rifled through his pockets and made off with his wallet as their subway train pulled into Chester station last Saturday. Hizel called out for help as he chased the muggers past the collector's booth and a TTC employee called 911.

Police found the discarded wallet, minus a small amount of cash, on Danforth Avenue.

All TTC buses, streetcars and Wheel Trans vehicles are equipped with on-board cameras, but current subway cars are not.

Orange youth on the move

Thousands march down Yonge for war-affected in Uganda

A GuluWalk of orange T-shirts and banners brightened Yonge Street over the lunch hour Thursday, as students and schoolchildren recreated the terrifying commute once faced nightly by children of northern Uganda's Gulu district.

More than 2,600 Toronto District School Board participants, mostly from Grades 6, 7 and 8, walked from Lawrence Avenue to Metro Hall to help raise awareness of past atrocities by the Lord's Resistance Army and current redevelopment needs.

To avoid being killed or captured on night raids, children commuted to town to sleep.

The LRA killers are now said to roam parts of the Democratic Republic of Congo and Central African Republic.

"Internal displacement camps are emptying out and people are returning to their villages," said Kieran Hayward, co-founder with Adrian Bradbury of GuluWalk, a made-in-Toronto aid group that has inspired sister walks in 72 countries. "Young people who have spent their childhood in camps now have to learn how to farm."

City-based gold mining firm sees first-quarter earnings drop

Agnico-Eagle Mines Ltd. reported a drop in first-quarter earnings. The Toronto-based gold miner, which keeps its books in U.S. dollars, said Thursday it earned $22.3 million US for the quarter ended March 31 compared with a profit of $54.3 million a year ago. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Jewels can be a gal's best friend

Student finds setting stones the career she was looking for

Kathleen Kerr was halfway through a four-year program studying kinesiology, likely bound for a future career as a physiotherapist. There was just one problem — she realized it wasn't for her.

She made the switch into interior design, graduating with an honours diploma.

But after moving back to her hometown of Kitchener and looking for work, her search was coming up short and she realized it wasn't her passion.

It wasn't until she signed up for a continuing education course on jewelry basics that she finally tapped into what would become her future calling.

Kerr is graduating from the three-year Jewellery Arts program at Toronto's George Brown College.

Now she has aspirations to carve out a career in the field, with dreams to perhaps one day own her own studio and to make pieces to sell at shows or on consignment to boutiques.

Kerr, 29, has gained broad-based skills, including the basics of sawing, soldering and filing, progressing to learning goldsmithing and gem setting.

She also learned how to use different modes of equipment from handling a torch to anneal metals to polishing using a large lathe and a small handpiece.

Interest in the field seems to be gaining momentum. Jewellery Studies professor Paul McClure said the student body's size has doubled over the past 10 years.

Each year, there are about 200-plus applicants for the three programs — Jewellery Arts, Jewellery Methods and Jewellery Essentials — from which 60 are accepted into the programs. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Telecoms need lower fees, taxes: Rogers CEO

COMMUNICATIONS Canada's communications industry will need the government to lower fees and drop taxes if it is to be competitive and bring in new investment, the head of telecommunications giant Rogers Communications Inc. said Thursday.

Nadir Mohamed

"We support a healthy, productive regulatory framework but it must meet the following criteria: Will it spur innovation, will it create a level playing field and will it put the interests of consumers first?" CEO Nadir Mohamed told shareholders in Toronto.

"Lower fees and taxes so that we can spur innovation in our industry's ability to invest in the future" Mohamed said in a message to the federal government to work with the communications industry to keep it competitive.

He also warned that while regulation is necessary, too much ends up as a barrier to progress and that rules governing the telecommunications industry must put the needs of consumers first.

The federal government signalled in the recent throne speech that it wants to open up the telecommunications sector, which includes cable and satellite TV and wireless services, to foreign competition. But Mohamed said any rules must apply equally to all players in the industry. THE CANADIAN PRESS

News in brief

SIGNS Toronto is moving to regulate truck-based "rolling billboards" whose purpose is to roam city streets where people can see the advertising. A draft bylaw that would limit ad sizes and require fees be paid to the city is a positive step, said Rami Tabello of illegalsigns.ca, a citizens' group that has pushed for more city control over billboards. Sprawling park picked for G20 protesters

G20 SUMMIT Residents and business owners near Trinity Bellwoods Park are expressing a range of emotions from curious to concerned following the news that the sprawling 37-acre park in the west end has been designated as the official protest area for the G20 summit on the June 26-27 weekend.

Ringed by single-family homes, the park is a magnet for dog owners, couples seeking a nice stroll, performance artists, sporty types wanting to play tennis, baseball, cricket, soccer — you name it. But it's never been the site of an event like this one, which is expected to draw thousands of protesters objecting to globalization and pushing various causes.

Const. George Tucker with the G20 security team said other areas were considered, including Nathan Philips Square and Clarence Square, but Trinity Bellwoods was ultimately chosen for its size and because it was available.

Toronto paramedic Rahul Singh is on Time magazine's list of 100 most influential people of the year.

Paramedic on Time list

Rahul Singh, a Toronto paramedic and founder of GlobalMedic, a disaster relief organization made up of volunteer paramedics, police officers and firefighters, has made Time magazine's 2010 list of 100 people who have most affected the world.

He is in lofty company, sharing a spot in the Hero category with former U.S. president Bill Clinton. Others on the full list include U.S. President Barack Obama, Lady Gaga, Oprah, Prince and Steve Jobs.

The list appears in Time's May 10 issue, available Friday.

Singh, who works full-time as a paramedic, founded GlobalMedic in 1998. The organization has responded to more than 50 disasters, including the recent earthquake in Haiti.

Singh is described in the Time essay by Haitian Prime Minister Jean-Max Bellerive as a "shining example of selfless effort."

But Singh said the honour isn't really about him, but about the organization.

"The only reason I'm getting this award is because of our front-line volunteers … the paramedics, police officers and firefighters who risk their lives and go off into the fray to give medical care and clean water to disaster victims."

GlobalMedic provided millions of litres of water to those most in need, Time says. TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

Security zones will control traffic during G20 summit

PLANS While much remains under wraps, Const. George Tucker with the Integrated Security Unit offered some details on security plans for the June 26-27 G20 summit at Thursday's town hall meeting.

- An outer "traffic zone" between Yonge Street and Spadina Avenue, King Street and Lake Ontario will stay open to pedestrians and vehicles with officers directing traffic as motorcades pass through.
- There will be two fenced-off perimeters: A "red zone" encompassing the summit site, the Metro Convention Centre, and an outer security zone containing up to 30,000 residents and workers.
- The Ward's Island ferry will not be running as of June 24. Island residents will have to use ferries servicing Centre Island instead. TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

Canada offers building bonus

The federal government is offering to lend Michigan more than half a billion dollars to speed up construction of a second bridge in the busiest trade corridor between Canada and the United States.

In a letter to Michigan's governor Thursday, Transport Minister John Baird said environmental assessments have cleared necessary hurdles in both countries. He said it's time to start the $5.3-billion Windsor-Detroit link, which is now before state legislators in Lansing.

Baird offered $550 million US to the financially strapped state "for project components in Michigan that would not be funded by the public-private partnership or the United States government."

"Amongst other terms to be negotiated ... Canada would expect repayment from the anticipated toll revenues to be derived from the operation of the new bridge," Baird told Gov. Jennifer Granholm.

Williams charged over lingerie?

A former Canadian military commander facing murder and sexual assault charges was hit with more than 80 new break-and-enter charges Thursday — with some of the burglaries reportedly involving lingerie.

Col. Russell Williams led one of the country's top airbases — CFB Trenton — before he was charged in February with first-degree murder in the deaths of two women and the sexual assaults of two others.

The commander's arrest shook the military to its core.

On Thursday, just hours before Williams made a brief court appearance, provincial police said a review of unsolved crimes had resulted in 82 new charges.

Forty-six of those involve break-ins in Tweed, Ont., the community where Williams lived after taking command of the sprawling airbase in July 2009.

Another 34 fall under the jurisdiction of police in Ottawa, where Williams shared a house with his wife.

The remaining two charges relate to suspected break-ins in Belleville.

Williams, 47, was arrested and charged with two counts of first-degree murder in the deaths of Cpl. Marie-France Comeau of Brighton and Jessica Lloyd, 27, of Belleville.

Bonnie Jones, a neighbour of Williams in Tweed, said she didn't know what to make of the development.

"When you have a break-in you don't look for underwear to be missing."
Michelle Lajeunesse

"You just kind of get settled down and everything gets stirred up again."

Michelle Lajeunesse, who lives across the street and a few doors down from Williams's old house, called it "scary."

"When you have a break-in you don't look for underwear to be missing," she said. THE CANADIAN PRESS

There appeared to be progress Thursday when MPs met for the first time.

Calgary blizzard shuts schools, roads

A greening southern Alberta turned white again Thursday with a wet and windy snowstorm that closed schools, shut down major highways and mottled the flight board at the Calgary airport with red.

The dump of slushy, heavy snow began Wednesday and crippled travel as temperatures hovered around the freezing mark and winds gusted to 90 km/h. Hills and highway ramps were particularly dicey. A highway into the Cypress Hills in the southeast corner of the province was reduced to one lane because of a snowslide.

At one point, there were so many crashes on the main route between Calgary and Edmonton that it was closed so that emergency crews could work.

The RCMP recommended drivers stay off the roads if they could.

Power was out in many communities south of Red Deer because of high winds. As soon as crews managed to solve one problem, another would appear. In Calgary, utility provider Enmax said as many as 47,000 customers were without electricity at some point during the day.

At the Calgary airport, many flights were cancelled and many more weren't running on time.

Many schools were reporting bus delays. Several schools in outlying communities around Calgary didn't even bother to open for the day.

Maxime Bernier speaks yesterday in St. Georges, Que. A former Quebec premier says Bernier was once an avowed sovereigntist.

Bernier tagged as ex-separatist

A former Quebec premier says Maxime Bernier was once an avowed sovereigntist.

Ex-Parti Quebecois premier Bernard Landry, who was once Bernier's boss, said he's disappointed with his former protege these days.

Bernier has quickly become a darling of the Conservative party grassroots with his criticism of climate-change science, and of Quebec's social-welfare model.

There are even whispers that Bernier — who served for two years in Stephen Harper's cabinet — might be positioning himself for a run someday at the leadership of the federal party.

But Landry says he doesn't like what he's hearing from his former employee; he says he's flabbergasted by Bernier's comments about the Quebec economic model.

He also says Bernier clearly told him he supported Quebec independence when he hired him to work in his office in the late 1990s.

Landry was Quebec's finance minister at the time, and he hired the young lawyer to handle regulatory reforms in the financial sector.

Harper questions value of G20 in advance of summit

TRADE Prime Minister Stephen Harper is questioning the value of the G20 even as he prepares to host the group's first summit as a permanent organization.

Stephen Harper

"I think the actions of the G20 truly averted in the last year what could easily have been a worldwide depression. So that's a pretty impressive achievement," Harper told business leaders from G20 countries. "But the G20 still has much to do ... to really prove its worth on the economic files."

Harper, who welcomes the G20 countries to Toronto in June, said global trade talks have little hope of progressing this year. Instead, he encouraged countries to embrace "aggressive bilateral trade strategies."

Harper also said issues such as development for poor countries should be kept to the G8, since that's where all the donors are.

Compensation for Kuwait victims

A United Nations panel has approved $590 million US in compensation payments for victims of Iraq's 1990 invasion of Kuwait. The UN Compensation Commission says the money will go to five companies and four government or international bodies. It did not disclose the identities of the claimants Thursday but said all are in Kuwait.

Disaster creeps toward Gulf coast

U.S. government now involved as oil spill much worse than originally thought

A massive oil spill in the Gulf of Mexico that has become far worse than initially thought crept toward the coast Thursday as U.S. government officials offered help from the military to prevent a disaster that could destroy fragile marshlands along the shore.

An executive for BP PLC, which operated the oil rig that exploded and sank last week, said on NBC's Today show that the company would welcome help from the U.S. military.

"We'll take help from anyone," said Doug Suttles, chief operating officer for BP Exploration and Production. The U.S. Coast Guard has urged the company to formally request more resources from the Defence Department. And on Thursday, President Barack Obama has dispatched Homeland Security Secretary Janet Napolitano, Interior Secretary Ken Salazar and Environmental Protection Agency administrator Lisa Jackson had been dispatched to help with the spill. But time may be running out: Oil from the spill had crept to within 19 kilometres of the coast, and it could reach shore as soon as Friday. A third leak was discovered, which government officials said is spewing five times as much oil into the water as originally estimated — about 5,000 barrels a day coming from the blown-out well 64 kilometres offshore.

Suttles had initially disputed the government's estimate, and that the company was unable to handle the operation to contain it.

But early Thursday, he acknowledged on Today that the leak may be as bad as the government says.

Captain Michael Nguyen stands on his fishing boat in Venice, Louisiana, Thursday. Local fishermen are worried about the impact of an oil spill that resulted from last week's explosion and collapse of the Deepwater Horizon oil rig in the Gulf of Mexico.

All-out response

- The Obama administration pledged an all-out response Thursday to the massive oil spill now expected to reach the Gulf Coast within a day and dispatched top officials to the region to help co-ordinate defences against the potential environmental disaster. The priority was to support the oil company BP PLC in employing booms, skimmers, chemical dispersants and controlled burns to fight the oil surging from the seabed.

Taliban boss may be alive after all

INTEL Pakistan and U.S. intelligence wrongly reported the death of the head of the Pakistani Taliban in a CIA drone strike and the ruthless commander is now believed to be alive, Pakistani spies said Thursday. The reports that Hakimullah Mehsud survived the January missile attack close to the Afghan border will raise questions about the quality of the intelligence being gathered in the region.

Brown goes for broke

British Prime Minister Gordon Brown went for broke in the final TV debate on the economy Thursday, drawing on his vast treasury experience and banking on a political miracle after an embarrassing campaign gaffe.

Slumped in the polls, Brown wasted no time in his last-ditch performance before the May 6 election — using his opening remarks to neutralize Wednesday's gaffe with a quip. Brown had forgotten to turn off his microphone Wednesday after a Labour voter asked about an influx of Eastern European immigrants. After the conversation ended, Brown was heard muttering "bigoted woman."

"There is a lot to this job, and as you saw yesterday — I don't get all of it right," Brown said. The first-ever U.S.-styled debates have spurred an unexpected transformation in U.K. politics and shaped the election, one of the closest in decades. Months ago, the Conservatives' David Cameron was favoured, but he was eclipsed after the first debate when Nick Clegg, leader of the perennially third-placed Liberal Democrats, stole the show.

Seven weeks of demonstrations and turmoil in Thailand have turned parts of Bangkok into a "lawless protest camp," with police unable or unwilling to crack down on dissident leaders.

'Beyond imagination'

Renegade Maj. Gen. Khattiya Sawasdipol helped construct the barricades paralyzing downtown Bangkok, has been accused of creating a paramilitary force among anti-government protesters, and has vowed to battle his own army if it should launch a crackdown.

His actions have made him a fugitive from justice, yet he wanders freely in the streets of the Thai capital, signing autographs just metres from security forces keeping watch over the protesters.

Seven weeks into a stalemate that has turned parts of the city into a lawless protest camp, many are wondering why the government seems unable or unwilling to restore order.

"Red Shirt" protest leaders with arrest warrants on their heads lead demonstrations through the streets, sympathizers have set up roadblocks outside the city to stop police reinforcements from entering and no one in the government, police or military has publicly articulated a plan as to how to resolve the crisis.

"It's out of control. It's beyond imagination," said Siripan Nogsuan Sawasdee, a political scientist at Bangkok's Chulalongkorn University.

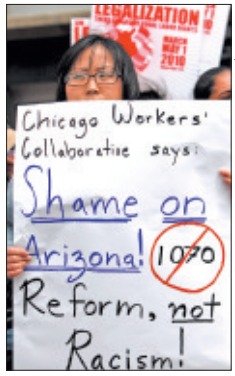
New law violates due process: Critics

An Arizona police officer and a Latino group filed the first legal challenges of Arizona's sweeping new law cracking down on illegal immigration Thursday.

Fifteen-year Tucson police veteran Martin Escobar argues there's no way for officers to confirm people's immigration status without impeding investigations. The lawsuit, filed Thursday in U.S. District Court in Tucson, alleges the new immigration law violates numerous constitutional rights and could hinder police investigations in Hispanic-prevalent areas.

A Latino Clergy group also sued Thursday in federal court in Phoenix. The National Coalition of Latino Clergy and Christian Leaders will seek an injunction preventing authorities from enforcing the law.

The group argues federal law pre-empts state regulation of national borders, and that Arizona's law violates due process rights by letting police detain suspected illegal immigrants before they're convicted.



NAMY. HUH/THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Arizona's new law, aimed at cracking down on illegal immigrants, has drawn plenty of criticism.

Signed last week by Republican Gov. Jan Brewer, the law requires local and state law enforcement to question people about their immigration status if there's reason to suspect they're in the country illegally, and makes it a state crime to be in the United States illegally.

U.S. Attorney General Eric Holder has said the federal government may challenge the law, and more Hispanic and civil rights groups are planning lawsuits.

"Mexican-Americans are not going to take this lying down," singer Linda Ronstadt, a Tucson native, said at a state capitol news conference on a lawsuit planned by the American Civil Liberties Union, the Mexican American Legal Defence and Educational Fund and the National Immigration Law Center.

MALDEF president Thomas Saenz said many Latinos fear implementation of the law but the legal challenge provides reason for optimism.

"We will be in Arizona to protect the community," he said.

Vatican order under fire

The No. 2 official in the conservative Legionaries of Christ order has broken his silence on revelations that the group's founder had fathered children and abused seminarians, giving an interview on the eve of a Vatican meeting to discuss the order's fate.

The Rev. Luis Garza Medina said Thursday he didn't know before 2006 that founder Rev. Marcial Maciel had fathered a child.

He also said cases of sexual abuse by priests should be referred to civil law enforcement.

On Friday, five Vatican experts were to discuss their investigation into the order with the Vatican's No. 2 official, Cardinal Tarcisio Bertone.

Bertone ordered the probe in 2009 after the Legionaries acknowledged that Maciel had fathered a daughter who is now in her 20s and lives in Spain.

Governator says it's OK

Republican backs Obama's health-care reform

Gov. Arnold Schwarzenegger pledged California's full support Thursday for national health-care reform, throwing the weight of one of America's most prominent Republicans behind an overhaul that caused a deep political divide and prompted at least 18 U.S. states to file legal challenges.

Schwarzenegger said he has long supported the concept of universal health coverage, and in 2007 proposed a $14.7-billion overhaul of the health-care market in California.

That effort failed in part because of concerns over cost, but the governor credits the effort with helping lay the groundwork for the federal bill signed this year.

Health-care reform has been a primary goal of the nation's Democratic president, Barack Obama. Congressional Republicans voted unanimously against the administration-backed reform bill that recently was enacted.

Arnold Schwarzenegger

Schwarzenegger said it's time to set politics aside and start implementing the new law, even as many cash-strapped states worry the costs of the overhaul will widen their budget shortfalls.

"The bottom line is that the plan is not without flaws," Schwarzenegger said during a news conference. "But it is a good law. And it is the time for California to move ahead with it, thoughtfully and responsibly."

The Republican Governors Association said it believed Schwarzenegger was the first Republican governor to come out strongly in favour of the health-care reform law.

Judge in 'kids for cash' scandal to plead guilty

JUSTICE One of two former Pennsylvania judges accused of taking millions of dollars in kickbacks to send youth offenders to private profit-making detention facilities has agreed to plead guilty to a federal racketeering charge.

Former Luzerne County judge Michael Conahan will plead guilty to his role in the $2.8-million "kids for cash" scandal, according to a plea agreement filed on Thursday.

Prosecutors said Conahan and another former judge, Mark Ciavarella Jr., took kickbacks from the owner and builder of two private juvenile detention facilities.

Last year, the state Supreme Court vacated the convictions of thousands of juveniles who appeared before Ciavarella between 2003 and 2008.

There is a positive side to taxes

UrbanCompass

Thank goodness there's a strong group looking at new sources of tax revenue for Toronto.

Yes, I know it's hard to smile when taxes increase, but a government with enough money to deliver good programs is about the best thing that can happen in a society. The period from 1950 to the mid-1980s was good at creating jobs, economic opportunity and prosperity because governments ran strong programs addressing social welfare issues, health, education, and public infrastructure.

During the past 30 years the economy has flattened out and wages have stagnated primarily because politicians said we should cut taxes and government programs. We've paid a heavy price for those decisions.

"So it's good news to see that a small group led by John Tory will look into and report on what a good new tax base to fund new transit for Toronto might look like."

Toronto used to build a lot of affordable housing that supported low-income households, created jobs, and built good neighbourhoods like St. Lawrence. Our city had an excellent school system and university tuition was affordable. There were lots of recreation programs and supports for kids and youth.

But financial transfers from the federal government to cities have been reduced to a trickle. Provincial transfers aren't as large as they used to be either. Toronto has cut programs and is virtually bankrupt.

So it's good news to see that a small group led by John Tory will look into and report on what a good new tax base to fund new transit for Toronto might look like.

Tory is an interesting guy: He was a senior executive at Rogers; heavily involved in United Way; ran a losing campaign for Toronto mayor; headed the Progressive Conservative Party of Ontario; and is now chair of the Toronto City Summit Alliance and a commentator on radio station CFRB. That's a great resumé for a person who thinks we need to look for new tax revenues for the city.

His committee will be examining things like road tolls and a city sales tax. These will be taxes set and controlled by the city government to meet its own financial needs.

It's a great start to achieving better city government.

Name change can influence your career

ELISABETH BRAW
Metro World News

Attention brides: Trading the Miss for Mrs. may be romantic, but think twice before taking your husband's name. It will harm your career, warn researchers.

According to a study, published in the current issue of Basic and Applied Social Psychology, women using their husbands' last name are also judged as more dependent and less ambitious than women who keep their maiden name — but are also seen as more kind and caring.

More alarmingly, members of the Mrs. League earn approximately $1,500 less per month.

"But it's very difficult to explain the income gap," said researcher Dr. Marret Noordewier. "It can also be that women who take their husbands' names earn less money because they're different anyway."

"More alarmingly, members of the Mrs. League earn approximately $1,500 less per month."

What about Angela Krasner? Though divorced and remarried, the German chancellor uses her first husband's name, Merkel. And after a brief post-wedding attempt at remaining Hillary Rodham, Hillary is now known as Mrs. Clinton.

Women with less stature using their husbands' last name don't fare as well. According to psychologists at the Tilburg Institute for Behavioral Economics Research in the Netherlands, women who take their husband's name, or use hyphenated names, are seen as less intelligent and less competent than women who keep their maiden name.

"Changing your name isn't always negative," Noordewier said.

"But if people have limited information about you, this is how they'll judge you."

Armed with these findings, Noordewier's team surveyed Dutch university students' attitudes to name change and received a surprise: 81 per of male students wanted their future wives to change their names — and 83 per cent of female students planned to do so.

Capital lends a hand

After his team's wheels came off in the NHL playoffs, Washington Capitals forward Brooks Laich helped a stranded motorist by changing her car's flat tire. Driving following Washington's 2-1 home loss to the Montreal Canadiens, Laich pulled over when he saw the stopped car and got out to lend a hand, the Washington Post's website reported Thursday. Toronto Blue Jays catcher John Buck is congratulated by teammates Lyle Overbay and Travis Snider after hitting a three-run homer Thursday. Buck had three home runs as the Jays beat Oakland 6-3.

John Buck hit three home runs and drove in five RBIs as the Toronto Blue Jays snapped a five-game losing streak with a 6-3 win over the Oakland Athletics Thursday night.

Travis Snider added a solo home run for Toronto and Ricky Romero (2-1) allowed three runs on four hits in six innings to earn the victory before a crowd of 10,721 at Rogers Centre. Kevin Gregg pitched the ninth for his sixth save.

Oakland starter Justin Duchscherer (2-1) took the loss, leaving the game after 3⅓ innings with an injured left hip. He left two runners on for left-hander Jerry Blevins, who promptly gave up Buck's second homer of the game to give Toronto a 5-3 lead.

Duchscherer was charged with four runs on five hits and two walks.

Oakland took the lead in the first when Ryan Sweeney doubled to the gap in left-centre and scored on Kevin Kouzmanoff's single.

The Athletics took a 3-0 lead in the third when Daric Barton led off with a double and reached third on a ground out. Blue Jays shortstop Alex Gonzalez threw Barton out at home on Kouzmanoff's ground ball, but Romero wasn't out of trouble. He walked Adam Rosales and a wild pitch put the runners at second and third before Jake Fox doubled them home.

Coming off a sweep at the hands of the Boston Red Sox that included a 2-0 shutout a night earlier, the Blue Jays bats awoke in the bottom of the inning. Buck led off with his second homer of the season and Snider hit his third blast of the campaign on the very next pitch.

The home runs ended a string of 19 consecutive scoreless innings for the Blue Jays and also halted Duchscherer's string of 21 innings without allowing an earned run.

Buck's big night marked the 15th time a Blue Jay has hit three homers in a game and the third time it has been done by a catcher.

After six days off, Crosby ready to resume quest for another Cup

NHL In three months' time, Sidney Crosby has won an Olympic gold medal with an overtime goal and returned the Pittsburgh Penguins to an enviable position in the Stanley Cup playoffs.

A gifted player previously known as a playmaker first and a scorer second tied for his first NHL goal-scoring championship. He also is one of three finalists for the Hart Trophy, an award he's already won once.

What he hasn't done is take much time off. Until now.

When his Pittsburgh Penguins open their Eastern Conference semifinal series against surprising Montreal Friday night, Crosby will be coming off a six-day break. It's the most time off he's enjoyed since training camp began in September, or three months to the day since the Penguins won the Stanley Cup.

Considering he's played 38 games, counting the Olympics, during the past two months, it must seem like a month off.

Considering the Penguins will play their 300th game in three seasons in Game 4 against the Canadians, it's the kind of break Crosby may not see again until the playoffs end.

So what did he do during his much-needed time off?

He practised, of course.

"It was good. I don't think anybody was complaining about it," Crosby said Thursday. "It's great to get practice time, I really like to practice and work on skills and go over details. When you get to the playoffs, that's so important, the details of the game."

Practising for 60-plus minutes isn't the same as playing 100 minutes-plus game, as the Penguins did in losing Game 5 of their first-round series against Ottawa. The Penguins came back to win Game 6 and give Crosby some of the time off he's wanted since the demanding and fatiguing two-week Olympic tournament.

While the Olympics couldn't have ended any better for Crosby, the demands on his time during and after the games may have led to his worst slump of the season. Tired physically and spent emotionally, Crosby scored three goals in his next 13 games — two in one game. The stretch included seven consecutive games without a goal.

Still, the 22-year-old Crosby came back to tie Steven Stamkos of Tampa Bay for the goal-scoring title by getting four goals in his final four regular-season games. He followed that up with five goals and 14 points in six games against Ottawa.

Sky not falling on Jays

SportsVoice

John Chick

metronews.ca/sports

On April 2, 1997, my crew and I hit the second game of the Jays season at the then-SkyDome. We avoided the opener the night before because we knew off-season acquisition Roger Clemens wouldn't be starting. With all due respect to Pat Hentgen, we wanted to see the Rocket. Attendance that night was 31,310 — almost 10,000 less than opening night. Clemens pitched a gem, en route to a Cy Young season. But what I noticed most that night was the shortage of fans.

Thirteen years later, 31,000 would be a huge crowd at the Rogers Centre. Going into Thursday's game against Oakland, the Jays were averaging about half that per game at home. The drop in attendance is nothing new — it hasn't been the same since the Joe Carter home run. This year, however, it has taken on an alarming tone, considering a historical big draw like Boston couldn't bring in more than 16,000 per game recently.

But while some claim the sky is falling, I'm still of the clichéd belief that if a team wins (over the course of a season, not two months), fans will show up. The problem is, the Jays can't win. They can't contend in the AL East, and hoping for a fluke one-off like the 2008 Rays won't instil much fan commitment. They are stuck in a cavernous stadium that was state-of-the-art for 15 minutes, and was later purchased for fruit rind by their parent company. As long as Rogers wants to invest in this Bills thing, there won't be any baseball-friendly renos either. And this year, the Jays traded away the greatest pitcher in franchise history for unproven players. Was anybody really expecting sellouts every night?

In my perfect world, they'd build a privately-financed ballpark across Polson Street from the Docks and the team would move to the AL Central. In my perfect world, I would also be a ninja fighter pilot. Face it: Toronto is a lousy sports town. After the Leafs, we are splintered into groups.

Could the Jays be sold and moved? To where? Vegas? Charlotte? Options aren't plentiful and those that exist aren't necessarily ideal markets for Major League Baseball. Toronto is not the only city with this issue. How'd you like to be a Royals fan?

John Chick is a copy editor at Metro and veteran sports journalist.

Linebacker keen to don Double Blue

CFL DRAFT Growing up in Brampton, Shomari Williams fondly remembers watching the Toronto Argonauts dominate the CFL en route to consecutive Grey Cup championships in 1996 and '97.

On Sunday, the Queen's Golden Gaels linebacker hopes he will don the Double Blue and be able to do his part to lead the Argos back to CFL respectability.

Williams heads into the CFL's Canadian college draft Sunday (TSN, noon ET) as the top-ranked prospect. The Argos have three picks among the first 11 — including first overall — and head coach Jim Barker has said Williams is among the players he's considering to take with the No. 1 pick.

"I watched Toronto closely growing up and went to their games," Williams said Thursday. "It would be pretty cool to play for Toronto.

"But if it doesn't happen I do think the other teams all have great benefits as well. Saskatchewan (which has the second and fourth picks overall) has one of the best fan bases while the B.C. Lions (who have the No. 3 pick) are really good as well. I'd be happy playing anywhere."

Toronto has taken an offensive player all four previous times it has held the first pick. Three of those selections have been offensive linemen, including the last time it held the No. 1 selection and used it on centre Chad Folk in 1997.

Toronto secured the No. 1 pick after posting a league-worst 3-15 record. Having won just seven games combined the last two years, the Argos have many needs and it's important they get a player who can start right away or at least make a positive contribution immediately.

One need is shoring up the offensive line. But the majority of top-notch prospects are either returning to school or have signed NFL contracts, delaying when they'd report to the Argos.

A top available prospect is Joe Eppele, a six-foot-six, 309-pound tackle from Washington State. Eppele has all the physical tools to dominate and at one time was regarded as the favourite to go first overall. But he fell back to the pack after having some trouble in 1-on-1 drills at the CFL evaluation in March.

Williams would offer value as the top pick. He could immediately contribute on special teams while learning the nuances of CFL offences from veteran linebackers such as Canadian Kevin Eiben and Willie Pile. Williams is also versatile, able to play either in the middle or on the edge as a rush end.

"I think I can excel at both positions," Williams said. "A few months ago, I would've probably said I could only play linebacker but I think I've got better at defensive end."

Home ice looking nice

Bruins are now the 2nd-highest remaining seed in Eastern playoffs

The Boston Bruins lost 10 straight games in one miserable stretch. They even lost 10 in a row at home. They didn't clinch a playoff berth until their next to last game.

And now?

The sixth-seeded team in the East has home-ice advantage in the conference semifinals.

"To be in the second round, maybe there is a little surprise to the people," captain Zdeno Chara said Thursday, "but I still think that this team believes in what we have and what we can accomplish."

They made their regular-season playoff run with star playmaker Marc Savard sidelined for the last 18 games with a concussion. They eliminated the Buffalo Sabres in six games in the opening round even though leading goal scorer Marco Sturm didn't get a single point. And they advanced without two injured solid defencemen, Dennis Seidenberg and Mark Stuart.

So what turned the club that scored the second-fewest goals in the regular season into the second-highest remaining seed in the topsy-turvy Eastern playoffs?

"It was just a process through the whole year that we had to work on being more committed every night and being more desperate every night," said 42-year-old Mark Recchi, who won Stanley Cup championships with Pittsburgh in 1991 and Carolina in 2006. "We went through a lot of stuff and the guys started to figure it out. If you play hard every night and you compete hard every night we're a pretty good team."

Michael Ryder dropped from 27 goals last season to 18, but picked up his play down the stretch.

"We played with desperation and showed a lot of emotion," he said. "When you play like that, your game starts to turn around."

What may be even more surprising than the Bruins' success is their opponent's in the series starting Saturday. The seventh-seeded Philadelphia Flyers didn't clinch a playoff spot until their final game then beat the second-seeded New Jersey Devils in a five-game series.

Luongo expects to bump into old foe

NHL There's a good chance Roberto Luongo will bump into an old acquaintance when the Vancouver Canucks face the Chicago Blackhawks.

Chicago's decision to return massive Dustin Byfuglien to forward from defence means the Canuck goaltender will be seeing a lot more of his old nemesis when the teams tangle in the NHL Western Conference semifinal.

For Luongo, dealing with Byfuglien is like a trip to the dentist. It can be frustrating, even painful, but something that can't be avoided.

"He's going to be in front of my net and it's my job to fight through his presence and find the puck and make saves," Luongo said Thursday before the Canucks boarded a plane for Chicago.

"That's the way playoff hockey is played. I had two guys in front of me during the L.A. series. I just have to deal with that stuff."

The best-of-seven series opens Saturday at the United Center (CBC, 8 p.m. ET) The second game will be Monday in Chicago, then the series returns to Vancouver for matches Wednesday and Friday.

Byfuglien, a six-foot-four, 257-pound behemoth, parked himself in front of the crease and cast a shadow over Luongo when Chicago defeated Vancouver in six games during last year's conference semifinal. He scored two goals and spent a lot of time in Luongo's mask. The heavy traffic resulted in collisions and heated words. Several times Luongo found himself buried under many bodies.

Byfuglien won't be the only Chicago wide body crashing the Canucks' net. Playing on the top line with Jonathan Toews and Patrick Kane will be six-foot-four, 223-pound Bryan Bickell.

Canuck coach Alain Vigneault hopes the referees keep an eye on the fine line between screening a goaltender and knocking him down.

"Against our team, with Roberto in goal, that is one of the opposition's tactics to get to our net, get to Roberto," said Vigneault.

2008 American League Cy Young Award winner Cliff Lee is set to make his debut with the Seattle Mariners Friday.

Lee set to take the mound

Seattle off-season addition slated to make first start Friday

Cliff Lee has been through a season's worth of events for his new Seattle Mariners and he hasn't even pitched in a game that counts yet.

The 2008 American League Cy Young Award winner has tried an unproven blood therapy for his strained abdomen. He's had simulated games. He's had bullpen sessions from Peoria, Ariz., to Arlington, Texas, to Kansas City, Mo., since getting hurt March 15. He's been in Tacoma, Wash., for a minor-league rehabilitation outing.

He's also been suspended for five games for throwing over the head of a hitter in an exhibition game. He's had an appeal hearing cancelled, eventually pleaded his case in a two-hour teleconference, then had the league drop the whole thing.

Finally, Lee gets his Mariners debut Friday night at Safeco Field against Texas, his first start since Game 5 of the World Series Nov. 2, when he beat the New York Yankees for the Philadelphia Phillies.

And Seattle finally gets to unwrap its prized winter acquisition in what has to be its most anticipated April 30 game in team history. The Mariners are expecting such a large crowd, they are opening the stadium gates early.

"I'm anxious. I can't speed up the clock," Lee said. "Friday, it's just go out there and have fun. Let it all hang out."

Almost all. He will be limited to about 100 pitches.

He threw 68 while allowing just three hits in six shutout innings against triple-A batters Sunday in Tacoma.

"First day coming off the DL, I hope we can get his pitch count up and get him out of there by the third inning, then we don't have to worry about him," Rangers manager Ron Washington said Thursday. "Hopefully, he's excited and he tries to overthrow. It's going to be a challenge. The guy can pitch." THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Kinsler rejoins Rangers

BASEBALL All-star second baseman Ian Kinsler rejoined the Texas Rangers Thursday and was set to travel with the team for its West Coast trip and his season debut.

Kinsler was back in the clubhouse and then in the dugout after completing a three-game rehabilitation assignment at double-A Frisco without any setbacks. He has been on the disabled list all season after sustaining a high right ankle spring during spring training.

Even though Kinsler tried to persuade manager Ron Washington to let him play in the homestand finale Thursday against the Chicago White Sox, the Rangers stuck with their plan.

Kinsler will be activated from the disabled list Friday before the team plays in Seattle and be in the lineup then.

"It's been a little while. I'm ready to play," Kinsler said. "(Washington) wanted me to relax today because I've been going at it pretty hard. I tried to fight him a little bit, but he's pretty stubborn. I'll get in there in Seattle."

Premier League title within Chelsea's grasp

Chelsea will capture its first Premier League title in four years if it beats Liverpool Sunday and Manchester United loses at Sunderland.

In the closest title race in years, which United is convinced will go to the final round of matches May 9, Chelsea is a point ahead of the defending champion with two games left. Manager Carlo Ancelotti stands on the brink of winning the championship in his debut season in English soccer.

Chelsea visits a Liverpool side (Setanta Canada, 8:30 a.m. ET) that could be tired from Thursday's Europa League semifinal against Atletico Madrid, while Ancelotti's players will have had a full week's rest following its 7-0 thrashing of Stoke. Liverpool is striving to finish fourth in the standings and qualify for next season's Champions League.

After playing Sunderland (The Score, 11 a.m. ET), United finishes with a home game against Stoke — another mid-table team with little left to play for — and midfielder Darren Fletcher says manager Sir Alex Ferguson is confident the title will only be decided on the final day.

Carlo Ancelotti

"The manager said before the Spurs game (last weekend) that it might go down to the last 10 minutes (of the season)," Fletcher said. "We keep believing in the way we play. We don't get desperate. We throw players forward but it's not just long balls into the box.

"We believe in passing, getting it wide and creating the right opportunities ... You need to keep playing football and create good scoring chances."

Ryan Giggs, who has won 11 league titles with United, believes the team's ability to stay in contention until the very end could count in its favour.

"The experience we have got — the players and the management — helps," Giggs said. "We'll try and score an early goal, but we know it can come right down to the last minute, like it did against Tottenham and Man City. We have to play our football and be confident in ourselves."

Although the title race could be over Sunday, the chase for fourth is set to continue until the final day. Tottenham and Aston Villa are level on 64 points, Manchester City is one point behind and Liverpool has two to make up. Spurs and City each have a match in hand.

Woods off to a rugged start at Quail Hollow

GOLF The cheering was loud and enthusiastic when Tiger Woods stepped to the tee on a chilly morning, another sign that perhaps people are more interested in his golf than what kept him away for so long.

About the only thing that bothered Woods Thursday was the few moments of applause after his introduction. He went seven tee shots without hitting a fairway. He hit into the water on consecutive holes, the first one leading to double bogey. And right when it looked as if he might limit the damage, Woods flew the green at No. 9 on his final hole for one last bogey.

Woods wound up with a 2-over 74, ending his streak of 21 consecutive rounds at par or better dating to last September. It was his worst opening round at a regular PGA Tour event since he shot 75 at The Players Championship three years ago.

What did he plan to fix?

"Not a damn thing," Woods said. "I'm just going to go hang it up today and come out tomorrow."

Suddenly, the goal is to stick around longer than two days at Quail Hollow, where he won two years ago and has never finished worse than 11th.

The rust everyone expected at the Masters, where Woods tied for fourth, showed up at Quail Hollow.

After a risky flop shot that Woods pulled off to near perfection at the par-5 10th for a birdie to start his round, it was a mad scramble to save par for so much of his day. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Nuggets' Nene has hyperextended knee, not torn ACL

Medical tests have revealed that Nuggets centre Nene only hyperextended his left knee and didn't tear his ACL as feared when he went down in the first half of Denver's Game 5 win over the Utah Jazz. An MRI Thursday revealed no ligament or meniscus damage in his sprained knee, the team said. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Thomaz Bellucci plays a forehand in his match against Novak Djokovic during day five of the ATP Rome Masters Thursday.

Nadal, Djokovic advance to quarters

Rafael Nadal improved his record at the Rome Masters to 24-1 with a methodical 6-3, 6-2 win Thursday against 39th-ranked Victor Hanescu.

The four-time winner in Rome saved all five break points late in the match, including one when he was serving for the match.

He set up match point with a long rally that included a rush to the net and back to the baseline to chase down a lob with an over-the-shoulder shot, finally setting up a volley winner into the open court.

Nadal closed it with an overhead smash on his first match point.

"I played with less intensity after 4-1 and it's impossible to play with less intensity at this level," Nadal said. "I had some problems the last two games with myself, but I saved it."

He will face Stanislas Wawrinka, the 2008 runner-up, who took out Robin Soderling 6-3, 6-2.

Second-ranked Novak Djokovic defeated Thomaz Bellucci 6-4, 6-4, and will meet Fernando Verdasco in the quarter-finals. Verdasco edged Guillermo Garcia-Lopez 6-4, 7-6 (2) to improve his record to 13-2 on clay this year.

David Ferrer earned his tour-best 21st win on clay this year, stopping Andy Murray 6-3, 6-4.

"I didn't make enough returns and his serve had a very high per centage," said Murray, who failed to convert all three of his break points. "That was a big disappointment that I wasn't able to convert more break-point opportunities — that's usually the best part of my game."

Murray has never won more than two matches at this warmup for the French Open, which begins May 23.

Many questions linger for stunned Capitals after early playoff exit

NHL Say this for Alex Ovechkin's Washington Capitals: They hardly can be accused of hiding their aspirations.

When NHL deputy commissioner Bill Daly presented Ovechkin with the Presidents' Trophy during an on-ice pre-game ceremony nearly three weeks ago, the league's two-time MVP refused to touch the award. He didn't even glance at it, saying later: "We just wait for the big things coming."

And Washington coach Bruce Boudreau made his team's hopes clear that night, too, noting: "It's not the one we want."

They wanted the Stanley Cup. Writing on his blog Thursday, Capitals owner Ted Leonsis referred to aiming for a championship and wrote, "To fall short so early in the process this year is quite humbling."

Instead, that other trophy, the one signifying regular-season excellence, is all the Capitals have to show for 2009-10. They became the first top-seeded team to blow a 3-1 series lead against a No. 8 and were eliminated in the first round by goalie Jaroslav Halak and the Montreal Canadiens with a 2-1 loss in Game 7 Wednesday night.

"If someone came to your work and stepped on your desk or punched you in the head — that's how I feel."
Capitals forward Jason Chimera

"If someone came to your work and stepped on your desk or punched you in the head — that's how I feel," Capitals forward Jason Chimera said. "You come for a long playoff run, and it doesn't happen, it's tough."

Thursday marked Day 1 of a much lengthier off-season than the Capitals anticipated, an off-season that begins with questions:

- Is this a team built for the regular season?
- Can its go-go, high-flying system succeed in the playoffs?
- Are changes needed? How extensive?

After Wednesday's setback, Boudreau bristled at a pointed query about whether the latest disappointment validates criticisms that his team's style of play doesn't work in the playoffs.

"It doesn't validate anything," Boudreau replied. "I think the way we play is the way we were built, and if we had to make all these guys into checkers and play a trap game, I think it would have been a pretty boring team to watch, and we wouldn't have been anywhere near as successful as we were."

Jobs: Flash attack

Apple chief says technology unfit for iPhone

Apple CEO Steve Jobs is going on the offensive against Adobe's Flash technology. He says it has too many bugs, drains batteries too quickly and is too oriented to personal computers to work on the iPhone and iPad.

In a statement Thursday, Jobs cited "reliability, security and performance," and the fact that Flash was designed "for PCs using mice, not for touch screens using fingers" as some of the reasons Apple will continue to keep the program off its devices.

But he said the most important reason for excluding Flash is that it puts a third party between Apple and software developers. That means developers can take advantage of improvements from Apple only if Adobe upgrades its own software, Jobs wrote.

Apple has been criticized for excluding Flash, the most popular vehicle for videos and games on the Internet. But Jobs said that with an abundance of media outlets offering their content on iPhones and iPads, "Flash is no longer necessary to watch video or consume any kind of web content."

Greek crisis could hurt us: Carney

ECONOMY Bank of Canada governor Mark Carney, testifying before the Senate banking committee Thursday, said Greece's problems could spill over and cause a slowdown in the global economy as markets demand governments rein in their deficits. In Canada, that would result in higher interest rates.

A global slowdown would also cut demand for many of Canada's resources exports.

Expenses lead to loss for Nuvo

PHARMA Drug developer Nuvo Research Inc. says higher corporate expenses helped widen its first-quarter loss despite a 33 per cent revenue hike. The small drug company said yesterday its loss for the January-March period slightly increased to $3 million from a loss of $2.9 million a year earlier. Corporate costs totalled $2.1 million in the quarter, up from $1.4 million, as it spent more on consulting and professional fees. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Maple Leaf turns corner

Maple Leaf Foods Inc. has made a full recovery from its grueling battle with Listeria contamination at one of its plants, but the major food processor is still suffering from a bout of loonie flu as the high Canadian dollar eats away at its earnings.

Toronto-based Maple Leaf said yesterday its first-quarter profit rose to $8.8 million, six cents per share, even as sales revenue during the first three months of the year was dragged down by the off-putting effect of a higher dollar on its sales abroad.

That was still well ahead of its $2.9 million, two cents per share, profit in the prior-year period.

"After a couple of fairly challenging years, it finally feels like we're back on stable ground," president and CEO Michael McCain told the company's annual meeting yesterday in Toronto.

THE CANADIAN PRESS

Recall

- It has been almost two years since Maple Leaf found itself at the centre of Canada's largest food recall ever after an outbreak of Listeria at one of its meat plants in August 2008 that was linked to the deaths of 22 people.

Financial outlook bright for Ottawa's Bridgewater

WIRELESS Bridgewater Systems has revised upward its 2010 financial outlook, projecting a revenue increase of as much as 41 per cent over last year on an anticipated surge in demand for technology used in smartphones and other devices.

The wireless software developer said yesterday it expects to book revenue of $85 million to $94 million over the full year. That was up from its original forecast of $82 million to $92 million in February. The Ottawa company cited "significant contracts with Tier 1 customers and a large customer base in existing and emerging markets for the revised outlook."

Head of central bank lauded by U.S. mag

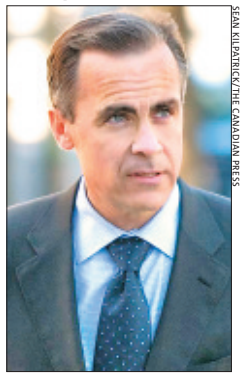
Carney on Time magazine's most influential list

Bank of Canada governor Mark Carney has been named the 21st most influential person by the prestigious Time magazine.

"Central bankers aren't often young, good-looking and charming, but Mark Carney is all three — not to mention wicked smart," the magazine says in its latest edition.

"As the head of the Bank of Canada, Carney, 45, had the good fortune of presiding over a banking system that didn't need a single bailout. Now that the world's richest nations are working to coordinate new financial rules, Carney is clamouring to stay focused on the causes of the crisis — like banks not holding enough capital and Western consumers spending too much — instead of getting distracted by populist zeal."

Carney has been widely credited for helping Canada weather the recession by keeping interest rates low and helping to generate a solid recovery.



SEAN KILPATRICK/THE CANADIAN PRESS

Bank of Canada governor Mark Carney makes his way to appear before a Senate banking committee on monetary policy Thursday.

As well, the Bank of Canada's cash infusions and other credit-stimulating moves last year helped the Canadian banks weather the credit crunch that squeezed many countries. The Big Five banks are among the strongest financially in the world and continue to post solid profits, while many of the world's banks produced multibillion-dollar losses during the recession.

Carney is the second Canadian official who has received international recognition in large part because of the the country's ability to withstand the global financial meltdown.

Last year, Finance Minister Jim Flaherty was named finance minister of the year by a European publication.

On Time's list, Brazilian president Luiz Inacio Lula da Silva took first, reflecting the increasing impact of South America's largest and rapidly economy.

U.S. President Barack Obama placed fourth.

Passenger Side

Director: Matt Bissonnette

for Metro Canada

REVIEW Passenger Side is yet another in a long line of understated, no budget Canadian road movies that date back to Don Shebib's groundbreaking 1970 East coaster tragedy Goin Down the Road.

For some reason the road flick is part of the fabric of our cinematic identity, perhaps because it doesn't cost much to pile into a car and drive across the country. And that's also why the government likes to fund them: they're patriotic and cheap.

But the difference between Passenger Side and the rest of its Northern ilk, is that this one is actually set in L.A.

Adam Scott (Step Brothers,) and Joel Bissonnette (who's brother Matt also wrote and directed) star as two Montreal-born brothers with heavy emotional baggage. When Bissonette asks his younger sibling to chauffer him around the city one day so he can run some errands, much clever dialogue and indie rock music ensue. But the older lad is hiding more than one secret and by the end of the trip, both brothers will have to confront their true feelings about each other and many skeletons will collapse out of their respective closets.

Well written and occasionally funny (and oddly smutty), there's a Brown Bunny-esque aimlessness to the flick that might leave some viewers sleepy. Thank heavens the acting is well above average with the terminally underrated Scott owning the screen.

Behind the Iron mask

Downey Jr.'s career comeback continues with sequel

NED EHRBAR
Metro World News

Thanks to the Eyjafjallajokull volcano in Iceland, which grounded flights around Europe, Robert Downey Jr. finds himself in California to promote Iron Man 2 instead of London, where the movie's junket was supposed to take place.

But the actor refuses to feel too inconvenienced.

"I love the idea of someone taking the volcano personally," he tells Metro. "I know that would be a very Hollywood actor ego thing to do. But I didn't. I'm too psychologically well, I'm afraid."

Psychologically well is a state the star has been enjoying lately, as his career resurgence that took off two years ago with the first Iron Man continues unabated.

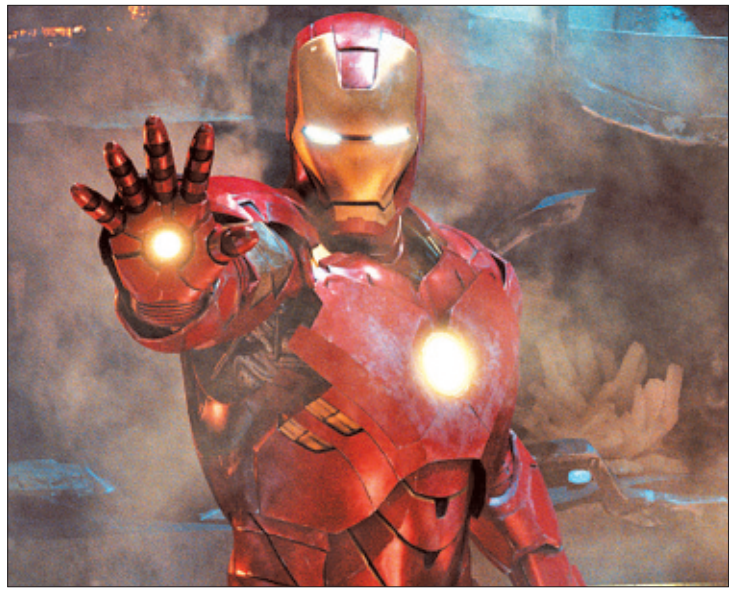
His time on the outs with Hollywood, after a lengthy and well-publicized battle with addiction and multiple arrests, appears to be behind him, and as successful as he's been, Downey tries to keep things in perspective.

"I'm dressed up for a press junket about a superhero. It's a cosmic joke," he says. "I think it's funny. It's very lucrative — as funny as lucrative things get."

Still, as funny as Downey may find it, he takes his work seriously, turning in standout performances in everything he's headlined since his resurgence.

"I really know what I'm doing. I think I've demonstrated that," he says. And with two major franchises — Iron Man and Sherlock Holmes — under his care, Downey insists that size matters.

"I can get excited about anything — this microphone, for example. If it's novel and feels good and becomes creatively sticky, I power through it," he says. "I just really need a big box to play in, or I'm not happy."



Robert Downey Jr.'s dons the superhero suit again for Iron Man 2.

Iron Man 2 opens next Friday

Movie feature

The latest Iron Man chapter gave Downey a chance to share that big box with another Hollywood comeback story in Mickey Rourke, who steps in as villain Whiplash.

"He has a lot of power. He is a very emotive guy who's lived a lot of life," Another new face in the cast this time around is Scarlett Johansson, as Tony Stark's mysterious new assistant.

Though a love triangle between their characters and Gwyneth Paltrow's Pepper Potts may have seemed a natural choice, Downey insists it would've been a mistake.

"When we started working together, because it's new, people were all saying, 'You have so much chemistry,'" he says. "First of all, it's not age-appropriate. Secondly, Tony's love interest is Pepper. Third, she's not there for that, she's there to misdirect the story. She's more a family member you don't know yet."

A Nightmare on failure Street

A Nightmare on Elm Street

Director: Sam Bayer
Stars: Jackie Earle Haley, Rooney Mara
Classification: 18A
Rating:

CHRIS ALEXANDER
for Metro Canada

Rooney Mara plays Nancy — a teen tormented by Freddy Krueger in her dreams — in the remake of A Nightmare on Elm Street.

The brilliance of Wes Craven's original A Nightmare on Elm Street was that it took the already tired '80s trend of stalk and slash "dead teenager" films (as Roger Ebert would call them) and completely threw it off its axis, combing nubile damsel-in-distress cliches with abstract, anything goes surrealist/expressionist dream logic.

The film is a classic, and rightfully so. Sam Bayer's mammoth budgeted remake is not. In fact it ain't much of anything.

Recycling not only the plot but most of the original's set pieces, NOES 2010 stars a gaggle of vacant, pretty teens who battle sleep deprivation in order to evade the nightmare infiltrating, razor-gloved wrath of a scar tissue coated boogeyman named Freddy Krueger (Watchman's Jackie Earle Haley). We know they're sleep deprived because the lads have perfectly manicured stubble and ruffled shocks of hair while the ladies sport snazzy junkie-chic designer makeovers. Like in the original, said catalogue casualties get butchered in their dreams and then explode into hamburger in real life as well. It's up to doe-eyed Nancy (Rooney Mara, who at least shows some semblance of life) and her histrionic emo pal Quentin (Kyle Gallner) to get to the bottom of the mystery before the entire neighborhood falls prey to the stink end of Freddy's fingers.

Produced by Michael Bay's franchise plundering Platinum Dunes imprint, A Nightmare on Elm Street makes Bay's last horror hack job Friday The 13th look like Double Indemnity. This is truly a shrug of a film that aims to duplicate the tone of the original while tinkering with virtually every aspect of it that made it work.

Haley is poorly used and lacks enough menace for the role of a homicidal, undead child molester; every time he's on screen, you'll find yourself pining for Robert Englund.

Director Bayer fails to exploit the liquid possibilities of the dream landscape, the script is non-existent, the actors have little to do but run and scream and the entire reason for Freddy's existence is so watery and weak that it barely registers.

This is a film designed by suits in boardrooms, with charts and graphs and contempt for their audiences.

Paul Gross stars as an American outlaw on Canadian soil in the western-themed comedy Gunless.

Gunless as flat as Prairies

Gunless
Director: William Phillips
Stars: Paul Gross, Sienna Guillory
Classification: PG
Rating:

STEVE GOW
for Metro Canada

There's one thing you have to say about what is perhaps this country's very first theatrically-released contemporary comic western – it doesn't take itself seriously.

On the other hand, Gunless isn't entirely hilarious either which leaves the film a bit in the lurch. Instead, this Paul Gross-vehicle is one movie that sputters and stalls.

I reckon there's too much dust in the carburetor.

Gross (Passchendaele) plays the wanted Montana Kid — an American outlaw who suddenly shows up disoriented in the fictional Canuck town of Barclay's Brush where he immediately challenges a blacksmith to a gunfight.

The only problem: There are no working pistols in Barclay's Brush. While The Kid bides his time waiting for the necessary repairs to an old sidearm, he soon warms up to the peace-loving locals — most notably Jane (Sienna Guillory of Inkheart), a tough-talking settler who rejects his gun-toting ways.

While writer/director William Phillips certainly accomplishes the task of touching upon the necessary iconography of the Wild West and delivering an authentic-looking duster (it helped that the film was shot in Canada's most arid region — Osoyoos, B.C.), the film suffers from a conventionalized, modest story and an eye-rolling intentness on painting a Canadian portrait which, in this type of maple syrup-infused adventure, comes off slightly hokey.

A genre that's been around as long as film itself, nobody should expect a western to be avant garde. But it does need to excite moviegoers and in this case, the unique comic spin of an American gunslinger lost in Canada is almost as flat as the rolling prairies.

Vengeance children's comedy done wrong

Furry Vengeance
Director: Roger Kumble
Stars: Brendan Fraser, Brooke Shields, Ken Jeong
Classification: G
Rating:

PHIL BROWN
for Metro Canada

Brendan Fraser stars in Furry Vengeance.

REVIEW Furry Vengeance is exactly what's wrong with most comedies aimed at children.

It's difficult to say whether the movie started with a screenplay or a checklist of every overused example of slapstick comedy in the books. Presumably the filmmakers thought that if they geared their movie at a young enough audience they'd be lucky enough to find viewers who hadn't seen these jokes thousands of times before and might able to trick them into laughing. That's probably true, but it's unfair to let children think that this passes for comedy.

The film stars Brendan Fraser as a father who uproots his wife (Brooke Shields) and son to take them to a woodland community where he will oversee the decimation of the forest in favour of strip malls and suburbs.

Somehow the animals find out and set about torturing Fraser to stop the development. Cue an endless series of pratfalls, potty jokes, and grown men getting hit in the groin.

Fraser can't be criticized for a lack of energy as he plays every joke like it's genius and commits to countless physical gags that must have lead to injury. Unfortunately, he just doesn't get many laughs nor does Brooke Shields.

Most of the screen time is dedicated to countless woodland creatures (who clearly weren't filmed with the actors) and their cartoony CGI equivalents. A couple of consistent comedic performers like The Hangover's Ken Jeong and Daily Show veterans Samantha Bee and Rob Riggle improvise a handful of decent jokes, but not nearly enough.

If you have children young enough to be susceptible to this sort of simplistic comedy, please steer them away. You'll only encourage this type of filmmaking to continue.

Perfect Game's got heart

A scene from The Perfect Game.

The Perfect Game

Director: William Dear
Stars: Clifton Collin Jr., Cheech Marin, Emilie De Ravin
Classification: PG
Rating:

PHIL BROWN
for Metro Canada

The Perfect Game is an unashamedly corny movie that crams in practically every sports movie cliché into a tight running time.

However, it's also a surprisingly warm and touching film that works thanks to an inspiring central story and an impressive cast.

Toronto-born director William Dear (Harry And The Hendersons) tells the tale of the 1957 Mexican little league baseball team that was so poor they walked across the border to their first game, but ended up winning the championship. The director mixes in genuine newsreel footage of the actual team whenever possible, which is a nice touch. If the footage wasn't there, it would be difficult to believe this actually happened.

The film opens in a depressed industrial Mexican community. The children run around with nothing to do when they aren't following the Brooklyn Dodgers on the radio with an almost religious devotion.

Cheech Marin plays the local priest (yep, that Cheech and he's quite good as well) who decides to start up a baseball team to give the kids something to do. He soon enlists the coaching duties of a local ne'er do well who left the St. Luis Cardinals minor league system due racism (played by the perpetually underrated Clifton Collins Jr. in a rare lead role). He turns the children into a talented team and then … well you know the rest. As the title suggests, the 1957 Little League World Series ends with the only perfect game ever pitched in that setting.

At times the film can be slowed down by a number of unwieldy subplots including Caesar's unnecessary love interest and a hotshot reporter covering the team, but never enough to derail the main storyline.

This a very simple story filled with plenty of drippy sentimentality and scenes with child actors shamelessly mugging for the camera. However, the movie is also incredibly sweet, undeniably inspiring, and its heart is in the right place. Any child with a love of baseball is guaranteed to enjoy it.

English Butler nascent effort at filmmaking

English Butler
Masala Chai

Director: Maneesh Malhotra
Stars: Tara Joshi, Sachin Sharma, Geoffrey Hymers
Classification: STC
Rating: ●½

PHIL BROWN
for Metro Canada

REVIEW English Butler is bad movie, but one that provokes a complicated reaction. This is clearly a nascent effort at filmmaking and watching it is akin to sitting through a grade 6 talent show.

It's obvious that what the cast and crew have done is a failure in any conventional sense, but you kind of want to pat them on the back for trying and encourage them to keep pursuing their dreams however misguided they may be.

This is the type of movie that features a real estate tycoon whose defining career triumph is a massive skyscraper he's built and works in. We're constantly shown the building and yet every scene that takes place in the office was clearly shot on the ground floor. It's a glaring mistake, but one that's kind of charming in its level of incompetence.

The movie is a bog standard culture clash comedy. Vivek is a wealthy Indian immigrant who despises the English for their centuries of colonization of his native country. Unfortunately his only daughter and heir to the family fortune has fallen in love with an English boy (uh-oh!).

Their solution? To have the boyfriend pose as an English butler for her father to prove that those lovable London chaps aren't so bad after all. Obviously things don't go as planned and zany shenanigans ensue. Whenever the jokes aren't flowing from that wacky situation, Vivek's wannabe rapper brother-in-law will pop up with even more lame humour.

Many faces of evil over years

InFocus
Richard Crouse
metronews.ca/infocus

Bela Lugosi is the actor most closely associated with Count Dracula, but he is certainly not the only one. More than 200 others have played old toothy over the years including mister tall, dark and gruesome Christopher Lee, who played the blood sucker eleven times. Ditto Frankenstein's Monster. Boris Karloff owned the role in 1931, but sixty other actors have tried to fill his size fifteen platform shoes in subsequent years.

The point is, no actor has total possession over a role, no matter how well known they are for playing it.

Just ask Robert Englund.

For twenty-six years he has been Freddy Krueger, purveyor of bad dreams, in The Nightmare on Elm Street series. In seven films and the television series Freddy's Nightmares he played the evil offspring of a nun and one hundred maniacs. His take on the character is so loved some people even pay permanent tribute to it.

Robert Englund played Freddy Krueger in seven Nightmare on Elm Street films.

"I saw an entire magazine of Freddy Krueger tattoos," he says. "There are thousands of people walking around America with my tattoo on them!"

He'll always be associated with Freddy, but as of this weekend his run as the most hated man in Springwood, Ohio comes to an end when Jackie Earle Haley makes the iconic role his own in the reboot of the series.

Ironically Haley auditioned for one of the teen roles in the original film in 1984 but the part went to his friend Johnny Depp.

As for taking on the role Haley says, "A lot of people wish it was Robert and I get that. He's made this character iconic and he's iconic as well. It's a tough thing and hopefully when the movie comes out people will dig it."

Haley is just the latest to fill in for a famous face. Recently Benicio Del Toro donned the lupine face mask of the Wolf Man, but Lon Chaney Jr (who had yak hair glued to his face during his 1941 transformation scenes) originated the role seventy years before.

Chaney is best known as The Wolf Man, but he was also one of those actors who stepped in to sub for some of the most famous monsters of filmland. In fact, he is also the only actor to have played all four of the classic movie monsters: The Wolf Man, Frankenstein's Monster in The Ghost of Frankenstein, the Mummy in The Mummy's Tomb and Count Anthony Alucard, Dracula's son in the appropriately named Son of Dracula.

Richard Crouse's Movie Show can be seen every Sunday at 6:30 p.m. on the E! Channel; mrchaos33@hotmail.com.

Through the Canadian looking glass at Hot Docs

ADAM NAYMAN
for Metro Canada

FILM FEST As its title suggests, Hot Docs' Canadian Spectrum program focuses entirely on homegrown filmmakers, and most of the entries deal with Canadian subjects, from John Kastner's haunting Life With Murder (about the fallout of a shocking murder in Chatham, Ont.) to Claude Demers' Ladies in Blue, about the robust autumn years of Quebecois crooner Michel Louvain.

But there are also several entries that look beyond Canada's borders, including Calgary-based director David Christensen's The Mirror, a wry, weirder-than-fiction portrait of an isolated, sun deprived village in the Italian alps.

"(My previous films) War Hospital and Six Figures had both been heavy, dark films that had taken a lot out of me," says Christensen, who also works as a producer for the National Film Board of Canada.

"I just wanted to take a break, but my wife left a short newspaper article on my desk one day that talked about this small town in northern Italy called Viganella that didn't get any sunlight for almost three months of the year. As a result, the villagers had this crazy idea to build a giant mirror to reflect sunlight onto the town. She left a note alongside the article, which said, 'please make your next film a happy one.'"

There is surely a sweetness to The Mirror, which documents the creation — and deeply suspenseful installation — of the massive, eponymous reflector, as well as the reactions of Viganella's inhabitants to the attendant media circus.

"(They) all thought that we were just journalists," says Christensen. "At one point, somebody started up a rumour that we were with National Geographic, and boy did that falsehood open up some doors and get us some drinks!"

- The Mirror screens Monday, May 3, 7:30 p.m. at the Royal Cinema and Wednesday, May 5, 11 a.m. at the Royal Ontario Museum.

Jane-Finch doc will make you Listen

A scene from Juan Baquero's doc Listen To This.

ADAM NAYMAN
for Metro Canada

In Juan Baquero's Listen to This, which makes its Toronto premiere at this year's Hot Docs, students at Firgrove Public School (near the intersection of Jane and Finch) are encouraged to write songs as part of an after-school initiative called Arts in the Hood.

The program, founded by pianist Thompson Egbo-Egbo and staffed by a dedicated group of local musicians, is designed as an exercise in personal expression, but it takes on an exciting new dimension as several of the children demonstrate an unexpected aptitude for their new craft.

"I thought it was a good opportunity to follow my interest in music and to make new friends who also liked to sing" says nine-year-old Jasmine Jacobs, one of the film's featured subjects and a talented songwriter.

"I wrote my first song when I was five," she says.

Baquero says the key was making sure that the children — and their families — felt comfortable with the set-up. "The issue was that the Jane and Finch area has traditionally been mistreated by the media," he says.

"I'm originally from Colombia," adds the filmmaker, "and the same thing happens there. You only ever hear about the country in the context of violence, or drugs, and it's frustrating, because reality is so much richer."

WEIGHT LOSS COMBO
helps reduce weight in 3 ways by Dr. Chakib Hammoud PhD.

1. CONTROL OF BLOOD SUGAR: with Bell Blood Sugar Imbalance #40. Many people fail to lose weight because their blood sugar level is making their body crave food, resulting in overeating and snacking. The capsules included help balance blood sugar.

2. Control Hunger & Cravings : The Bell Ezee Slimming Patches you get help reduce hunger, cravings and overeating. This helps you adjust to new eating habits over a period of 90 days. People write to us that they lose their cravings for sweets and junk food.

Examples: "I was surprised how easy it was"; "Totally lost cravings for sweets"; "Patches work wonders"; "Adopted new eating habits"; "Lost weight slowly and steadily"; "Diabetic lost 40 lbs. and stopped insulin roller-coaster".

3. Eat Healthy & Exercise : Healthy eating is required for long term weight control and health. A healthy lifestyle includes exercising as much as you can enjoy doing.

MIGRAID HEADACHES

■ In the past 10 years I suffered a lot with migraines. I would take 4 Advil or Tylenol Rapid Release and none of these worked well enough. After I found MIGRAID I was blown away as it really worked within 30 minutes with no side effects. I'm totally amazed. Absolutely floored. Michelle Woodman, 29, Crystal Falls, ON ■ I was in the hospital for 2 weeks. They made tests including MRIs, tried every drug they had. Nothing worked. I was praying to die. My mom found MIGRAID in the health food store. It worked in 10 minutes. I couldn't believe it. I want to express my gratitude. Christy Logue, 32, Tulsa, OK ■ For 15 years I tried all the OTCs as well as prescription drugs that were a lot more expensive than MIGRAID. I was pleasantly surprised about how effective it was every time within 30 minutes. Maranca Daniels, 42, Murfreesboro, TN

Producer Rick Rubin suggested Gogol Bordello take a more sensive approach to gypsy punk on new album Trans-Continental Hustle.

Culture, romance flavour new album from Gogol Bordello

BRYAN BORZYKOWSKI
for Metro Canada

Gogol Bordello's music covers a lot of ground, but, until recently, Brazilian sounds weren't part of their act. That changed though when Eugene Hütz, singer of the New York-based klezmer punk band moved to Rio de Janeiro. "I followed a girl," he says sheepishly, explaining why he moved to South America.

With more than six million people in Rio, the city is a far cry from Boyarka, Ukraine, where he was born, but somehow the mustachioed singer and actor fit right in. "I've always had friends there," he says in a thick Ukrainian accent. "And they think I'm an Argentinean hippie, so I'm not much of a target."

While Gogol Bordello hasn't turned into a Bossa Nova band, Hütz couldn't help but incorporate some sounds from his new home on his fourth disc, Trans-Continental Hustle.

"My good friend Manu Chao" — another cross-cultural musician who's hugely popular in Latin America — "and I travelled around Brazil and met all these musicians I used to listen to," he reveals. "I'd perform with them spontaneously and it turned out they we just as aware of Gogol Bordello as I was of their music.

"Suddenly I was at Carnival making mash-ups and guest appearances and it led me to the idea of recording this Brazilian album."

While the record definitely has some Brazilian moments — Sun is on My Side borrows its acoustic finger picking from legendary guitarist Joao Gilberto — it's a stretch to call this a Brazilian album. The disc mostly follows the same trajectory as their previous records — loud, klezmer punk tunes led by Hütz's frantic deliver and humerous lyrics.

> "It's not only about different social and cultural experiences, but it's about life, and surviving this whole thing."
> Eugene Hütz

While it's not as strong as 2007's Super Taranta! it's still a lot of fun; opener Pala Tute's infectious gypsy dance beat and the singer's grizzled pipes singing "girls they like the kissing as much as we do," is hard not to enjoy.

In the past Hütz has sang about the immigrant experience — coming from another country to North America and some of the challenges that followed — but this album tackles a more traditional musical theme: love. Besides being in love with the girl he chased to Brazil, Rick Rubin, the album's producer, wanted the band to focus more on their sensitive side.

"He asked us why we were neglecting our love songs," says Hütz. "He said they were actually some of our strongest material."

Hütz says they avoided making a record about romance because he though they'd be too soft for fans, but, he points out, "that was the hardest material. It was the real kicker of the album."

"I had to say something about this whole cross-continental romancing that had been going on," he adds. "And that's the whole of Trans-Continental Hustle. It's not only about different social and cultural experiences, but it's about life, and surviving this whole thing."

Dubai rock scene dry as the desert

SoundCheck

Alan Cross

Scanning the skyline of Dubai is like watching bamboo grow. Nothing seems to be happening, but look away for a moment and it appears that all those skyscrapers under construction have grown by four floors.

As one of the most liberal areas in the Middle East, I'd expected to find a thriving rock scene. Iran, Iraq and Pakistan are quietly exporting metal bands. I've come to the desert of the UAE to drink from the waters of Western-style Arabic rock. I was misinformed.

The UAE is firmly in the thrall of pop. English-language radio features either Justin Bieber all the time or endless re-runs of '80s hits like Out of Touch by Hall and Oates.

Even buying music is difficult — not because of censorship issues, but because there's nowhere to buy it. The Dubai Mall — so big that you locate stores by latitude and longitude — has just one little music store.

The Mall of the Emirates — the one with the indoor ski hill where the temperature is kept at -3 C, even when it's 47 C outside — may have a Virgin Megastore (the only music retailer out of 466-plus shops), but its floor space is devoted to DVDs, video games, computers, Rock Band/Guitar Hero displays, musical instruments and T-shirts. The few racks of CDs are way at the back of the store. It took me 10 minutes to find them.

> "English-language radio features either Justin Bieber all the time or endless re-runs of '80s hits like Out of Touch by Hall and Oates."

"Can you show me any local or regional rock?" I asked the person heading up the section.

"Here," he said, handing me a Serj Tankian CD, "Arabic rock."

"Um, no," I responded. "This guy is Armenian, lives in California and was part of an American band called System of a Down."

"No," said the clerk. "Arabic."

And so it went with him seemingly picking CDs at random and me gently explaining how he was wrong. In the end, he stumbled upon a genuine local thrash-metal band called Nervecell. We also found a compilation CD featuring a Pakistani group called The Kominas who sing a song called Sharia Law in the USA! (I later read about an alt-rock group from Abu Dhabi called Juliana Down. I couldn't find any CDs but they do have a MySpace page.)

I tried one more time at duty-free at the airport. The clerk smiled and handed me a Justin Bieber CD.

Hot Docs shines spotlight on wide range of subjects

IAN GORMELY
for Metro Canada

Pop music and film have co-existed since the end of the silent era. So it should come as no surprise that there's a bevy of music focused docs screening at this year's Hot Docs Canadian International Documentary Festival.

"We don't program thematically," says the fest's executive director Chris McDonald. "Invariably films about music and musicians do well with audiences and with our programmers. We have a great number this year."

He singles out Complaints Choir, which looks at a choral ensemble who create live musical events with complaints people submit, as a personal favourite. "I know it's going to be an audience favourite," he says. "It's a very funny film."

Other films music fans will want to check out include Shadowplay, which flips the lens on famed rock photographer Anton Corbijn. Many of his past subjects, including Kurt Cobain and Bono, sing the Dutch photog's praises while we get a behind-the-scenes look at his Ian Curtis biopic Control.

For more details visit hotdocs.ca

With A Drummer's Dream, famed Canadian filmmaker John Walker (Men of the Deep) once again turns his camera to the music world. As some of the world's best drummers congregate at a Canadian summer camp; it's like Drumline meats Meatballs.

Indie-rock and synth pop fans alike would be advised to check out Strange Powers: Stephin Merritt and the Magnetic Fields. Following the band as they tour 2004's i and record its followup, Distortion, the film offers a window into the mind of Merritt, the band's curmudgeonly frontman and his long-term friendship with bandmate Claudia Gonson. Not to be missed, even by casual fans of the group.

Giving Canada's own Langley Schools Music Project a run for its money, Thundersoul reunites Houston's Kashmere High School Band 35 years after last playing together. The high-school funk group were a '70s phenomenon thanks to the school's band master Conrad Johnson, whose passing was the impetus for the reunion.

But if run of the mill pop music doesn't float your boat, then maybe We Don't Care about Music Anyway is your flick. Delving deep into Tokyo's avant-garde music scene, the film explores everything from screeching strings to minimalist bleeps, examining the ever blurring lines between what we hear as music and noise.

Finally, no self respecting music fan can miss 1991: The Year Punk Broke, Dave Markey's long out of print doc which followed noise-rock Gods Sonic Youth on their 1991 tour. Along for the ride as opening acts were Dinosaur Jr. and a little band called Nirvana. I wonder whatever happened to them?

Loyalty Can Be Costly

Shopping Around Still The Key To Saving On Car Insurance

How Much Is Your Loyalty Discount Really Worth?

If you're like most consumers, you worry that switching insurance companies means losing your "loyalty discount". The truth is that switching insurance companies may cause you to lose your loyalty discount (if you had one in the first place), but that doesn't necessarily mean you'll pay more for car insurance or that you can't save a bundle in the end. The fact is, some insurance companies may provide a small discount on your premium if you've been with them for a long time – but that small discount can quickly become irrelevant if another company has a rate for you that is significantly less than what you're currently paying. After all, what good is 5% off of an annual rate of $1,500 (a $75 savings) if you could pay $1,100 (a $400 savings) with another company?

How Much Do Rates Really Differ Across Companies?

The rates charged by different insurance companies to insure the same driver, with the same car, for the same coverage, can vary by hundreds and even thousands of dollars. And with so many insurance companies providing car insurance in Ontario, odds are you are not currently insured with the company that offers the best rate for your driving profile. This is where InsuranceHotline.com can help by providing an independent, unbiased rate comparison from over 30 top insurance companies to find you the lowest rate available for your profile. Even better, once your lowest rate is found, InsuranceHotline.com can connect you with a licensed insurance broker or agent to seal the deal. It's Fast, Safe and FREE.

Don't Be Fooled By Others Offering To "Compare Quotes"

Unlike most of its competitors, InsuranceHotline.com does not sell insurance, is not a licensed broker or agent, and is not owned in whole or in part by an insurance company. This allows InsuranceHotline.com to be completely unbiased when providing insurance quotes and keeps its focus solely on finding the lowest insurance rates for consumers. By contrast, most websites offering to "compare insurance quotes" are owned by or affiliated with insurance brokers or agents and are therefore only capable of quoting rates from the limited number of insurance companies they represent, typically no more than 4 or 5.

Rate Comparison

Driving Record	Lowest Price	Highest Price	Savings
Clean Record	$958	$2,213	$1,255
1 Ticket	$1,018	$2,552	$1,534
1 Accident	$1,849	$3,753	$1,904

The Pack A.D. has dropped much of the blues and embraced garage rock on We Kill Computers.

Out of the blues

Pack A.D. takes latest album in new direction

BRYAN BORZYKOWSKI
for Metro Canada

Every now and then a band needs a change. For Vancouver duo The Pack A.D., the time had come to take their music in a new direction. Gone is the grungy blues from their first records — their latest, We Kill Computers, is straight-up garage rock.

"It was a natural progression," says singer and guitarist Becky Black, as she and her bandmate, Maya Miller, are driving across New York state. "We get sick of playing the same thing over and over again, and in the end these songs didn't have as much blues."

The record is a guttural collection of abrasive guitar rock — not unlike the band they get compared to the most, The White Stripes. But the group also has some Queens of the Stone Age and Led Zeppelin in them. Big Anvil's meaty, opening riff gives way to Miller's pounding drums and Black's Jack White-ish pipes. This one's got more of a blues bent than most of the songs on the record, but there's a healthy amount of Sabbath-like rock too.

Besides the lack of blues, the most noticeable difference between the two records is that their sophomore effort, Funeral Mixtape, featured a lot of slow, sludgy songs. We Kill Computers is completely opposite — almost every song is a relentless guitar attack.

Black explains that they took their time in the studio on their second album, which meant they had more opportunities to experiment. "We had time to come up with all these slow songs," she says. "But we realized we didn't play a lot of those songs slow live, so we decided to come up with a rocking album.

"The last album was a little heavy ... It's not really our personalities."

While their musical shift will get some attention, their album's provocative title is also sure to raise a few eyebrows. Black says there's nothing cryptic behind We Kill Computers — she's just not into social media. "Me and Maya have a mutual dislike of the computer and networking," she admits. "It's annoying."

"We get sick of playing the same thing over and over again, and in the end these songs didn't have as much blues." Becky Black

The twosome have a Facebook page and upload their music videos to YouTube, but they don't have a Twitter account and they won't start one anytime soon. "We have enough connecting with fans on Facebook and MySpace," she says. "Twitter eliminates the mystery."

Luckily, their fans are little less down on technology. "We put up our music videos and that's about it," says Black. "It's other people who end up putting most of our footage online."

The wives of Jersey are back in the house

In the first episode of The Real Housewives of New Jersey sophomore season, incendiary cast member Danielle Staub hangs out with her priest, pedicurist and daughters — but not any of the soapy Bravo reality series' other housewives.

It seems the rift between Staub and her fellow leading ladies is now larger than a Garden State hairdo.

"I think in the first season, it caught me off guard," said Staub. "I thought at least one of them was truly being a friend to me, whereas as this season pans out, I realize that's not the case."

Staub adds that this season, which premieres Monday, she's "not going to be anyone's patsy. I think the world will be just as interested in me as a single person as they will be in them as a group."

Staub, a single 47-year-old mother of two daughters, continues to be on one side of the Jersey barrier opposite sisters Dina and Caroline Manzo, their sister-in-law Jacqueline Laurita and family friend Teresa Giudice, who infamously savaged a table at a restaurant in last season's finale when the women confronted Staub about her alleged criminal past.

"What's amazing to me about this second season is it's so much about family," said Andy Cohen, Bravo's senior vice-president of original programming and development who also hosts The Real Housewives reunion shows.

"Each of these women are mothers, and they all have different, intense and interesting things going on with their children this season."

The reality TV drama entered the courtroom earlier this year when Ashley Holmes, Laurita's 19-year-old daughter, was found guilty in a municipal court on one count of assault and ordered to pay a fine after Staub complained that Holmes ripped out a clump of her hair extensions during an altercation, which will apparently factor into the second season.

"It was very painful, really unexpected and much undeserved," said Staub. "Police showed up, charges were made and it was up to the state. I wasn't going to allow anyone to put their hands on me without thinking there were repercussions because I'm not garbage. I'm actually a good person who deserves to go where I want to go without people attacking me."

Staub, who was accused of being an escort and drug addict in the first season, said she will tell her side in her upcoming autobiography, The Naked Truth: The Real Story Behind the Real Housewife of New Jersey — In Her Own Words. Despite Staub's rocky relationship with her Real Housewives cast members, she'd "absolutely" sign up for a third season.

"It's not about them," said Staub. "My life is never going to be about them."

John credits boy with sobriety

Elton John says he's been sober for 20 years, since shortly after the death of an Indiana teen with AIDS who the musician credits with inspiring him to turn his life around.

John was in Indianapolis on Wednesday to headline a benefit celebrating the life and legacy of Ryan White. The 18-year-old died on April 8, 1990, about five years after contracting HIV, the virus that causes AIDS, through a tainted blood transfusion to treat his hemophilia.

The singer befriended the boy during his public battle for acceptance after he was banned from a central Indiana school at age 13, bringing national attention to HIV/AIDS education and the plight of children with HIV in the 1980s. John was at Riley Children's Hospital when White died and was a pallbearer and performed at the funeral.

"It was one of the greatest things in my life to meet Ryan's family, to be there the last week to try and help, and then for that wonderful message that he gave me to change my life around," John told The Associated Press. "It was weird to take stock and think of it — I'm 20 years sober this year, and it's 20 years since Ryan died, because I got sober shortly afterward."

Metro's 7th Heaven: Metro taps what's hot right now

1 True Blood minisodes

ONLINE Season three of True Blood doesn't hit the air until June, but HBO has released a minisode featuring vampires Eric and Pam interviewing potential talent for their club, Fangtasia. Entertainment Weekly reports this is the first of six teases to be released over the next few weeks.

2 Nine

DVD It's time to plan an Italian night; and I am not talking about a spaghetti supper. The multiple award-nominated Nine — starring Daniel Day Lewis and a bevy of beautiful women — hits stores shelves on Tuesday.

3 Pride and Prejudice and Zombies — the graphic novel

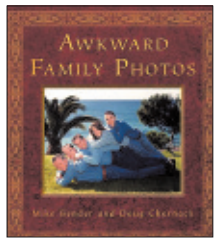
POP CULTURE Straight on the heels of Twilight's turn into a graphic novel comes this updated version of the Jane Austen classic. The book, with zombies added by Seth Grahame-Smith, has been out for a while, but now you can actually see corseted-heroine Elizabeth Bennet kick some zombie butt.

4 Iron Man 2

MOVIES Robert Downey Jr. reprises his role of Tony Stark, a.k.a. Iron Man, in this sequel to the 2008 superhero movie. Will Stark reveal the technology behind his metal alter-ego? Will Pepper Potts finally get her man? Iron Man 2 opens on May 7.

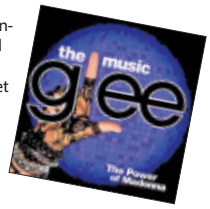
5 Awkward Family Photos

BOOK The guys behind AwkwardFamilyPhotos.com — Mike Bender and Doug Chernack — have collected some of the most humorous and horrifying family photos and put them together in this book. From matching outfits, to crazy hair and posed shots, it's all very hilarious — and chances are you will be able to spot your own family in this collection.



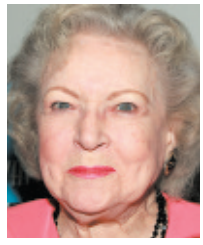
6 Glee – The Power of Madonna

MUSIC Glee's recent Madonna-themed episode turned out to be a ratings juggernaut for the series, and Internet gossip is already prediction the show will take another stab at the Material Girl. Until then, fans of the show can pop a new CD — featuring the cast performing seven Madonna songs — into their stereos.



7 Betty White

TV Like a fine wine, Betty White seems to get more endearing with age. The former Golden Girls star is set to guest host Saturday Night Live on May 8 — all thanks to a grassroots Facebook petition. There is even a new You Tube tribute video to the white-haired actress set to the classic song White Lines.



Mix of Six

Deep Wireless Festival

When: Saturday until May 30
Where: Artscape Whychwood Barns

This ninth edition of the annual month-long fest celebrating radio's legacy brings together artists like Charles Stankievech (pictured) who are expanding the horizons of the medium. Complete with performances, installations and broadcasts, it's a true homage to the spirit of the radio. $10-$15, passes $30-$40. See deepwireless.ca for venues and schedule.

Donlands and Mortimer

When: Friday, 7 p.m.
Where: Kapisanan Cultural Centre, 167 Augusta

All-ages shows and prog-rock don't seem like a natural fit, but on their Scylla EP, local six-piece Donlands and Mortimer combine jazzy pianos and richly harmonized chords with the exuberance we've come to associate with under-19s–friendly indie-pop. With Wax Mannequin, more. $8.

Jónsi

When: Friday, 8 p.m.
Where: Sound Academy, 11 Polson

If Iceland melted, audaciously ambient band Sigur Rós would be rescued right after Björk. With his bandmates taking time off to spend with family, Jónsi Birgisson is touring behind his first solo effort, Go. Note: the May 1 show is cancelled. Tickets honoured at Apr. 30 show; refunds available at point of purchase. $41.25.

A Jew Grows in Brooklyn

When: Until May 16
Where: Panasonic Theatre

After its incredible success on Broadway, this musical comedy now makes its Canadian debut. Created, written and performed by actor-musician Jake Ehrenreich, this autobiographical effort revolves around Ehrenreich's childhood and his search for his identity and desire to be a real American. $25-$60. 416-872-1212. Visit mirvish.com.

Wingéd

When: Until May 8
Where: Deleon White Gallery

Wingéd embraces the tradition of the remake by deconstructing present-day humanity with profiles of mythological characters Icarus, Lucifer, and Phoenix. $18-$20. whetstoneproductions.com.

Eddie Izzard

When: April 30, May 1, 30 & 31
Where: Massey Hall

Don't go to Eddie Izzard's four shows expecting to see him in spike heels or that to-die-for little number from his Dress to Kill special. The cross-dressing comic is in "boy mode" for this current tour, his biggest ever in Canada, in part because folks on this side of the Atlantic sometimes misread his sartorial habits.

Beatles' A Day in the Life handwritten lyrics to go on sale

For the right price, some lucky Beatlemaniac will be able to own the lyrics to the final song on the Beatles album Sgt. Pepper's Lonely Hearts Club Band.

John Lennon's handwritten lyrics to the Beatles classic A Day in the Life are being auctioned in June, Sotheby's announced on Thursday. The double-sided sheet of paper features Lennon's edits and corrections in his own hand — in black felt marker and blue ball point pen, with a few annotations in red ink.

It is expected to fetch between $500,000 and $700,000 when it is sold in New York on June 18.

Rolling Stone magazine listed A Day in the Life at No. 26 in its compilation of the 500 Greatest Songs of All Time and Sgt. Pepper won four Grammy awards in 1968.

The lyrics stirred controversy when the Beatles released the album in 1967. The song was banned by the BBC because it twice features the line, "I'd love to turn you on," which was interpreted as supporting illegal drug use.

The album's Lucy in the Sky with Diamonds was alleged to have glorified the use of the hallucinogenic LSD, a claim that band members denied.

In addition, A Day in the Life features the lyric "he blew his mind out in a car," which Beatles aficionados claim is a reference to the accidental death of Tara Browne, the Guinness heir and close friend of both Lennon and Paul McCartney.

Mamma Mia! makes triumphant return

JOHN KEILLOR
for Metro Canada

Seventies Swedish pop group ABBA continues to resurface in new ways. Catherine Johnson's juke-box musical, Mamma Mia!, is a tale about a young woman finding her father, with ABBA songs pushing the story forward.

Mamma Mia! is playing at the Princess of Wales Theatre

For husband and wife actors Vincent Corazza and Jane Cooke, this production's feel-good factor works both on stage and off. Though they've done movies together, this is their first time in the same stage production. It's also a kind of homecoming.

"We've been in Los Angeles for the last eight years, though we first met in Toronto," says Cooke by phone. "Vince's parents are there, and my eldest nephew goes to York."

"Everyone's in the production is looking forward to our nine weeks in Toronto," adds Corazza by speakerphone, "we'll finally get Mondays off. Usually, that's the day when we're travelling to the next town."

Coincidentally, this musical's North American premiere was here in the Big Smoke. Over forty million people have seen this production since its debut in 1999. It has earned over two billion dollars.

"25 disco songs are woven into a single story," says Corazza. "It really works without changing the material much at all. Characters interact and then burst into song. There's also a concert built into the script."

See the sights of 'cool' Gothenburg

JESSICA CARELSON
Metro World News

When most travelers thing of visiting Sweden going to Stockholm immediately comes to mind, but Gothenburg — the county's second largest city — shouldn't be forgotten about.

WHAT TO SEE
The streets

Gothenburg is totally comfortable in it's working class skin and is steeped in fishing and naval history. Walk the charming cobbled streets of the old district Haga and admire the fort Skansen Kronan, built in 1687 to protect the city from the Danes.

WHAT TO EAT
Seafood

Revered in Gothenburg, Feskekörka (which looks like a temple) was built as the city's fishmarket in 1874, and is still where you'll find the best sea food. feskekörka.se.

WHAT TO LISTEN TO Indie music

This is an indie band Mecca, but also home to the best festivals the country can offer. Way Out West (Aug. 12-14, wayoutwest.se/english) features M.I.A., Paul Weller and La Roux etc. The Gothenburg Symphony orchestra is led by superstar director Gustavo Dudamel and holds a free concert in the park Slottsskogen (June 6).

WHAT TO DRINK
STOL

A "STÖL" is an abbreviation you'll see on many a bar menu. It means a big, strong, lager. But you can also sip nice cocktails at for example Tranquilo (Kungstorget 14) and Heaven 23 Skybar).

WHAT TO WEAR
Understated cool

Swedes in general dress casually, and in Gothenburg indie is trés chic. A good local designer is Maria Westerlind.

WHAT TO DO
Chill

Kick back and relax. Enjoy the chilled pace, the famously warm Gothenburg sense of humour and the thrilling rides at Liseberg amusement park.

METRO WORLD NEWS

Be sure to check out Gothenburg's fish market Feskekörka for some seafood and the city's beautiful coast line.

WHAT NOT TO DO
Praise Stockholm

It won't necessarily get you into trouble, but it won't win you any friends either. Remember you're on the West Coast, the front side of Sweden, where the sea is salty and you see the sunset.

WHAT TO SAY
'Glenn'

There are more men called Glenn in Gothenburg than anywhere else in Sweden. The most famous is of course Glenn Strömberg, a football player and local hero — even though he lives in Italy now.

Bullock's Big Easy connection

SAINT SANDRA OF NEW ORLEANS It's a city synonymous with rebuilding — so New Orleans seems like the perfect place for Sandra Bullock to raise son Louis, people.com reports.

"New Orleans is his city, and he is going to know it inside and out," Bullock says in the exclusive cover story with the magazine, on newsstands now. "Without the spirit of the people who live there and take care of the city and honor its traditions, its love for music, its love for life, take those people out and you don't have why I love New Orleans so much."

Even before deciding to "find our child in New Orleans," Bullock was establishing significant ties to and a love for the Big Easy.

After Hurricane Katrina, Bullock became a major supporter of Warren Easton Charter High School, the first public high school for boys in Louisiana. The historical school sustained $4 million US in damages, and the actress, who tells People she "felt such a profound need to do something for them," has donated hundreds of thousands of dollars for renovations, new band uniforms and a new health clinic.

"She acts as if all 800-plus of these children are her own," Warren Easton's principal Alexina Medley tells People.

In September Bullock put down more permanent roots, purchasing a home in the Garden District of New Orleans. The mansion is reportedly near property owned by Treme star John Goodman and a home previously owned by writer Anne Rice, according to the Times-Picayune.

Alba 'heats up' her NYC hotel room

DISPELLING AIRHEARD RUMOURS: UR DOING IT WRONG Disaster nearly struck in Jessica Alba's trendy New York hotel room when the actress tried to heat up some fish sticks for an early dinner and couldn't figure out how to work the oven, according to Page Six.

"She ended up almost causing a fire in her room," a source says. "Fire alarms ended up going off throughout the hotel. The smoke was so bad that fire trucks had to come." Other guests in the hotel were quite displeased, according to the source.

Doctor: Michaels probably won't remember details of health crisis

SMALL MERCIES In the past few days, Bret Michaels was rushed to a hospital after suffering a brain hemorrhage, underwent tests while remaining in critical but stable condition and found out he had a side effect that could lead to seizures. But there's a good chance the rocker won't remember any of it, an expert tells People.

"Most people (who suffer this type of brain hemorrhage) don't remember most of their hospitalization — they have no recollection," Dr. Melvin Field, director of the Florida Hospital Neuroscience Institute, tells the magazine.

Doctors usually "give patients some sedation so they don't have pain, and that can kind of make it so they don't remember too much," says Field, adding that having blood in the brain can also cause some confusion.

Michaels will remain under the care of doctors.

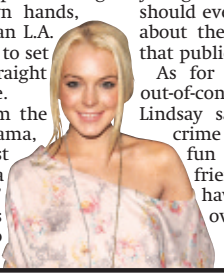
Lohan comes to her own defense

BECAUSE SHE'S PRETTY MUCH THE ONLY PERSON LEFT ON THE PLANET WHO WILL Lindsay Lohan decided to take her floundering public image into her own hands, calling into an L.A. radio station to set the record straight about her life.

"Aside from the father drama, which is just nuts, I'm a nice person," she told Kiss FM's JoJo Wright, referencing Michael Lohan's claims in the press that Lindsay is a bad influence on her younger sister. "No one should ever have to worry about their father saying that publicly about them."



As for her supposedly out-of-control partying, Lindsay said, "It's not a crime to go and have fun with your friends. I actually haven't been out in over a week."

Brinkley and daughter get matching plastic pick-me-up

CELEBRITIES: NOT JUST LIKE US For some mother and daughter bonding, Christie Brinkley and Alexa Ray Joel got plastic surgery earlier this month, according to Star magazine, hitting a New York doctor's office one day apart for procedures that set them back $60,000, sources estimate. Brinkley reportedly went in for a face-lift, while Joel got a nose job.

"Both Alexa and Christie are so happy," a source tells the magazine.

Metro Recipe of the Day

Parmesan Crusted Chicken

Recipe Developed by Paula Bowman
PREP TIME: 10 MINUTES
COOK TIME: 15 MINUTES

INGREDIENTS:
2 egg whites, lightly beaten
1 tablespoon Dijon mustard
4 (6-7oz) skinless, boneless chicken breasts
2 cups finely grated Parmesan cheese
1 teaspoon fresh thyme leaves, chopped

METHOD:
1. Preheat broiler to high and set oven rack to top position. Lightly oil a rimmed sheet pan with olive oil and set aside.
2. Meanwhile, mix egg whites with Dijon mustard and set aside. Place chicken breasts on a cutting board. With a knife parallel to the cutting board, cut chicken breasts in half lengthwise to create two thin chicken breast cutlets. Working with one cutlet at a time, dip chicken into egg white mixture and then coat in Parmesan cheese and place on prepared sheet pan.
3. Broil chicken breasts until crunchy and golden on one side, flip over and continue to cook on other side until cooked through, about 4 minutes per side. Toss carrots with walnuts just before serving. Divide chicken cutlets and carrot mixture among four plates and serve with any remaining broth from pan.

SERVES 4

• Serve this chicken with our Garlic Glazed Carrots. Find the recipe at 20minutesupperclub.com/metro.

ARIES ♈
MARCH 21-APRIL 20
You will have to make sacrifices if you are going to turn your dreams into realities. At least the Sun's is in the financial sector of your chart.

TAURUS ♉
APRIL 21-MAY 21
Focus clearly on what it is you want out of life. The planets indicate that what you think about strongly over the next few days is likely to come true.

GEMINI ♊
MAY 22-JUNE 21
You may be outgoing by nature but there are times when you need to be alone and explore what's going on inside your mind, and this is one of them.

CANCER ♋
JUNE 22-JULY 22
Recent events, either in your private life or at work, have pointed you in a new direction that can help bring meaning and purpose to your existence.

LEO ♌
JULY 23-AUG 23
Decide what your number one ambition is going to be, then get ready to make it happen. There will be no end of opportunities to move up.

VIRGO ♍
AUG 24-SEPT 22
So many of the things you have been worrying about mean nothing in the greater scheme of things.

LIBRA ♎
SEPT 23-OCT 23
No one can hide anything from you at the moment. Which might be the reason why certain people are avoiding you — they're worried.

SCORPIO ♏
OCT 24-NOV 22
You need to be a bit more open about your feelings — not a lot, but enough to let certain people know that you are not emotionally distant.

SAGITTARIUS ♐
NOV 23-DEC 21
Nothing in life happens purely by chance, and if you keep that thought in mind today you will find it easier to accept what happens next.

CAPRICORN ♑
DEC 22-JAN 20
You have a wonderful future, and if you don't believe that now you will start to believe it over the next few days.

AQUARIUS ♒
JAN 21-FEB 18
If others have been critical of your behavior lately it is most likely because you don't play by the rules like they do and, to put it bluntly, they are jealous.

PISCES ♓
FEB 19-MARCH 20
You will find yourself in the company of people whose interests coincide with your own today and that's great.

This day in history

1812: The Territory of Orleans becomes the 18th U.S. state under the name Louisiana.
1927: Douglas Fairbanks and Mary Pickford become the first celebrities to leave their footprints in concrete at Grauman's Chinese Theater in Hollywood.
1973: Watergate Scandal: U.S. President Richard Nixon announces that top White House aids H.R. Haldeman, John Ehrlichman and others have resigned.
1975: Fall of Saigon: Communist forces gain control of Saigon. The Vietnam War formally ends with the unconditional surrender of South Vietnamese president Duong Van Minh.
